Walpoles Special Curtain. No. 2640. Ivory only.
3 yds. x 50 ins. 9 11 pair
3½ yds. x 50 ins. 12/6 pair

A one week clearance offer of Lace Curtains at Walpoles.

TO every lady who knows how the prices of Lace Curtains are increasing, this special reduction offer will come as a very agreeable surprise. And no wonder, considering that if Walpoles' were to buy any of these Curtains to-day they would have to pay fully 50% more than these special prices. Add to this, designs of charm and distinctiveness and extreme durability, and one will immediately see what splendid bargains these are.

These Curtains would cost 50% more than these prices if bought to-day.

AND the reason is that stock-taking time will soon be here, and Walpoles' have about 2,000 pairs of these Lace Curtains they wish to sell before then. So in order to do this they are offering them for one week only at the last March Sale Prices.

OF course, such a rare chance to save so much and to get so much will not be overlooked by Ladies who look ahead, but Walpoles' would like to say that a manufacturer tells them that if the War continues much longer it won't be so much a question of price as one of rationing.

WALPOLES' PAY CARRIAGE.

As this is a Special Offer new Customers are asked to kindly send Cash with order.

ON SEEING THINGS THROUGH.

The will to see things through is worth a great deal. It is generally easier to begin a task than to carry it through to the desired end. Some people fail to complete their undertakings owing to a temporary slackening of physical energy. In such cases it is necessary to give immediate attention to the General Health. As a first step, care should be bestowed upon the digestion—the efficient working of which is of such paramount importance. If the stomach has lost tone, if the liver is sluggish, if the bowels are constipated or irregular, Beecham's Pills should be taken without delay. Success has attended treatment by this medicine, for so many years, and so remarkable have been the results, that Beecham's Pills can be recommended with the utmost confidence to all sufferers from digestive troubles. For energy and endurance—for the will to "win through"—Good Health is a supreme necessity. Good health again depends so much upon Good Digestion that the wisdom of keeping the latter in order should be apparent to everybody. It is now generally recognised that this can be successfully accomplished by the judicious use of

BEECHAM'S PILLS.

Prepared only by THOMAS BEECHAM, St. Helens, Lanc. Sold everywhere, in boxes, Price 1/3½ (56 pills) and 3/9 (168 pills).

Lord French and Ireland.

The Lord Lieutenant's speech at Rockingham yesterday will be welcomed by all patriotic Irishmen. It is a sane, simple, and sincere statement of the facts of the Irish situation. That situation, as Viscount French sees it, is deplorable, but not incurable. The heart of the country, as a whole, is sound. The stable elements in our society have not ceased to exist, but we are suffering to-day, more acutely than ever, from that lack of an intelligent public opinion which has always been the chief asset of our political agitators. We are immune from those hardships of war which are scourging the whole Continent of Europe, and of which even England has her share. We are enjoying a material prosperity which has no precedent. Our privileges at the end of four years of the most frightful war in human history are, as Lord French says, "abnormal." Unhappily, the country's mental condition also is abnormal. The folly and wickedness of the present epidemic of sedition are limited, more or less, to the younger generation of Irishmen; but it is by the words and acts of that generation that the world judges Ireland to-day. Misled by political visionaries, and the thoughtless victims of German intrigue, the young men of Nationalist Ireland are playing a miserable part before the eyes of civilisation. They talk of a national "regeneration," which is, in fact, their fantastic name for German slavery. Brooding upon their unreal grievances and their idle dreams, they have turned their backs upon the most wonderful opportunity which Providence has ever put in their country's way. In his fine speech to American soldiers, last Saturday, Mr. Rudyard Kipling said that "the immense and outstanding gain" from the war was that it "had welded, by common endurance, by common knowledge, and by pain shared together, the decent-minded, kindly, and clean-thinking peoples of the earth." Against that community of peoples, which, after victory, will decide and order the destinies of the world, Ireland, through the mad hands of her young men, is toiling to build an impregnable barrier. It is the last, and infinitely the most terrible, of all her spiritual tragedies.

The young men of Ireland, Lord French declares—and who should know better than the leader of the Irish regiments at Mons and Ypres?—are not cowards. Sanity, not courage, is their need. They have given their brains into the keeping of men who have perverted their natural sense of chivalry and patriotism to their own base or foolish ends. Lord French spoke of the real regeneration that Ireland needs, and may have if she choose—a true political settlement when the time is again propitious for it, and that material development which the Irish Government is not only willing, but anxious, to promote. Without a spiritual regeneration, however, neither of these things is possible or, even if it were possible, would bring any benefit to Ireland. The war is to-day the ultimate test of every nation's fitness to be free, self-respecting, and prosperous. If Ireland does not play a man's part in the war, neither Home Rule nor her abounding bank deposits will be able to save her from spiritual sterility and from her own and the world's contempt. Lord French did not enlarge upon this part of his subject yesterday. There was no necessity, for all men know what he expects from young Irishmen, and what he has done to make their redemption easy and their failure to seize their last chance utterly inexcusable. If Ireland finds 50,000 recruits for France before the 1st October, she will be held to have done her duty and will have averted conscription. There was good cause for the urgency of Lord French's appeal to the sanity of young Irishmen. Hitherto the visible success of the recruiting scheme has been negligible. The Recruiting Council has displayed industry and eloquence for which all loyal men are grateful. Its forcible appeals have been published broadcast, but with what result? Nearly a month of the three has gone—a month which ought to have furnished at least 15,000 men. We have no reason to suppose that it has furnished even one-half of that number. There has been no national response to the appeal. On the contrary, several public bodies have treated it with open contumely. Not a single word of encouragement has come from the Nationalist Parliamentary Party or from the heads of the Roman Catholic Church in Ireland.

The absence of intelligent leadership in Nationalist Ireland was never more appallingly manifest than now. The older generation, which has an increasing prescience of disaster, is helpless for lack of leadership. Nobody, prelate or politician, lifts a finger to bring the young men back to sanity. On the one hand, Mr. John MacNeill looks complacently upon the ruin that Sinn Fein has wrought, and babbles to his dupes about "changes in the air" and "unseen forces" which will bring about the triumph of an Irish Republic. On the other hand, the constitutional leaders, knowing and asserting that Home Rule, if it ever comes, must be the gift of the British democracy, sit dumb while the young men of Ireland hasten to estrange that democracy for ever. Ireland is hurrying to her doom, and those who could save her—could regain England's friendship, could avert the final loss of American sympathy, and could restore the national honour—are silent spectators of the tragedy. If the recruiting scheme fails, it will have failed for want of the support of the Nationalist Party and the Roman Catholic Church. We believe that many thousands of the young men of Nationalist Ireland have begun to recognise that they are playing a sorry part, and would respond willingly to an urgent call from a source which was neither Unionist nor Sinn Fein. We believe that, if the party and the Church would display one-quarter of the energy in getting recruits that they have displayed in resisting conscription, the 50,000 men would be found in the next two months. Lord French, an agent of destiny at Ypres, is now a voice of destiny in Ireland. Her honour, her peace, her whole future as a nation depend on her answer to his appeal.

The Coal Supply.

The tribute which Mr. Stewart, the President, paid to Mr. H. G. Burgess yesterday at the Dublin Rotary Club luncheon, at which the Coal Controller was the guest, was very well deserved. It is owing to his organisation, as Mr. Stewart said, that we have not yet seriously felt the pinch of the lack of coal in Dublin. The President went on to say that he was sure that Mr. Burgess would carry us successfully through the difficulties of the coming winter. Whether that hope is to be realised rests less with the Coal Controller than with the Irish public. Mr. Burgess has done all that organisation can do. He has effected the most economical regulation of import and distribution, and has taken measures to guard against hoarding and to conserve supplies for the poor. He has done everything possible to develop the home production both of coal and of substitutes such as turf. The most admirable organisation in the world, however, will not make a pint fill a quart pot, and when everything that can be done by organisation has been done to relieve the situation, the fact remains that in the last resort there is only one effective means of meeting shortage—and that is saving. During the past two months imports have fallen away by at least thirty-five per cent., and we are faced with an acute scarcity. In this situation wastage in coal consumption is a criminal folly for which we shall all have to pay very dearly in the winter. Mr. Burgess urged the Irish public to economise while there is still time. Wastage and private hoarding have already compelled some works temporarily to suspend operations. We may direct attention to Mr. Burgess's warning both to coal merchants and householders in connection with hoarding. At the same time we may also suggest to the Coal Controller that greater publicity should be given to the actual regulations on the subject, of which the public is still widely ignorant. Hoarding, however, can be set right by requisitioning. A much more serious matter is actual wastage, which cannot be made good. Mr. Burgess has proof that there is still great wastage—in street, shop, and public lighting, heating, and power; in the heating and lighting of institutions and places of entertainment; in unnecessary tramway and electrical services; in gas and electrical works; above all, perhaps, in domestic heating and lighting, which accounts for half the total consumption. He declared with emphasis that waste under all these heads must stop if we are to carry on through the winter with the smaller quantity of coal coming into Ireland. Instructions as to the best means of economising consumption have been issued, and they are repeated in the Coal Controller's speech. The alternative to scrupulous obedience of them is "the unpleasant spectacle of works closing, unemployment, and the poor, and even the well-to-do, without fires or light."

The Munitions Dispute.

The threatened strike of skilled men in the great munition-making centres in Great Britain, which was to have come into force last night, has been postponed and, we hope, with reasonable good-will on the part of all concerned, will soon be finally averted. The whole trouble seems to have been due to a misunderstanding. Owing to the shortage of skilled workers the Ministry of Munitions has been taking steps to "ration" the supply as between different employers, and has, therefore, prohibited firms which already have more than their proper share from adding to their staffs. This "embargo," as it is called, applies only to one hundred firms out of thousands. Men who desire to leave any particular firm are free to choose any employment they like except that of these hundred firms, which already have their fair share of skilled men. So vaguely was this decision announced, however, that not only the skilled workers, but many employers, were under the impression that the "embargo" was general. Firms to which the order did not apply have been acting under that impression, and have announced that they are prohibited from engaging skilled men of any type. Thus the unfortunate suspicion was aroused that the restriction of the engagement of skilled workers was to be used to the advantage of the unskilled "dilutees." When a strike was threatened, Mr. Churchill, instead of giving the most ample publicity to the facts of the case, and without consulting the trade union leaders, issued a rather unfortunate proclamation. The trade union leaders have thrown their whole weight against a strike from the outset. The plain moral of the whole affair was drawn in the House of Commons yesterday by Mr. Lambert, who asked why the control of labour should not be removed from the tactless keeping of the Ministry of Munitions and transferred to the informed handling of the Ministry of Labour.

DEEDS OF GALLANTRY DESCRIBED.

HONOURS FOR IRISH OFFICERS.

The following names, with others, appear in a supplement to the London Gazette, giving details of service for which Military Cross was conferred:—

Lt. (A./Capt.) William Pedlow, R. Dub. Fus.
For conspicuous gallantry and devotion to duty. He led his company with great dash and determination in an attack, and was the first to reach the enemy trenches. He entered a tunnel in the enemy's lines and cut the wires which were connected with mines. It was due to his leadership that the objective was reached with so few casualties to his company.

2nd Lt. Gorth Petit, R. Dub. Fus.
For conspicuous gallantry and devotion to duty. He led his platoon in a most dashing manner, overcame all resistance, and entered the enemy's trenches. He set a splendid example to his men throughout the operations.

Lt. (A./Capt.) Alfred Strode Pim, R. Ir. Regt.
For conspicuous gallantry and devotion to duty. He led his company with the greatest dash and determination in an attack, and captured all his objectives. His example of courage and initiative was an inspiration to his company, and contributed largely to the success of the operation.

Capt. (A./Maj.) Bernard John Ryan, R.E.
For conspicuous gallantry and devotion to duty. He carried out a most difficult reconnaissance of a canal and its bridges in front of our line and obtained valuable information. Though badly wounded in the course of the reconnaissance, he made a report before having his wounds attended to, and showed great determination and initiative.

T./2nd Lt. Gerald Sinclair, R. Muns. Fus.
For conspicuous gallantry and devotion to duty. He led two platoons in an attack on a tunnel, in the enemy's lines with great energy and determination. He entered the tunnel, captured several prisoners, and cut the wires which were connected with mines. The quickness and determination with which he worked overpowered the enemy's resistance and saved many casualties.

T./2nd Lt. Thomas Bones Stephenson, R. Ir. Rif.
For conspicuous gallantry and devotion to duty. His company commander having been wounded early in the operations he assumed command and organised and led bombing parties when the enemy sought to enter our trenches, driving them back. He showed great courage, initiative, and resource under most trying conditions, and set a splendid example to his men.

2nd Lt. Maurice William Taylor, R. Ir. Fus., Spec. Res.
For conspicuous gallantry and devotion to duty. He led his company in an attack with great gallantry and skill. He captured an enemy post which was obstructing the advance, and after gaining his objective rapidly re-organised his company and repelled four counter-attacks by the enemy. His fine example was the greatest encouragement to his men.

T./2nd Lt. Stanley Gray Thomas, R. Ir. Rif.
For conspicuous gallantry and devotion to duty when in command of his company. He led his company from the support position, and occupied and held an isolated enemy strong point. He went out into the open under heavy machine-gun fire to the assistance of a wounded officer. His cheerfulness and disregard of danger were a great encouragement to his men.

Lt. William Haviland Waters, R. Ir. Fus., Spec. Res.
For conspicuous gallantry and devotion to duty. He showed splendid leadership and courage when one of the companies had lost most of its officers and N.C.O.'s in an attack. He organised an attack on a point which was causing heavy casualties and captured it, putting the whole garrison out of action and capturing a machine-gun and some prisoners.

T./2nd Lt. Archibald Wilding, R. Ir. Fus.
For conspicuous gallantry and devotion to duty. He led forward a party and captured an enemy machine-gun emplacement which was causing heavy casualties, taking twenty-three prisoners and two machine-guns. He showed splendid gallantry and fearlessness.

T./2nd Lt. Gerald Leopold Williams, R. Innis Fus.
For conspicuous gallantry and devotion to duty. He was detailed to follow close behind the attack and construct a communication trench with his platoon. Though wounded, he remained at work under a heavy bombardment and completed his task with great skill. He set a splendid example to his men.

Lt. (A./Capt.) Harold Patton Williams, R. Innis Fus., Spec. Res.
For conspicuous gallantry and devotion to duty. Throughout an attack, in which he led his company, and subsequent consolidation, he showed the greatest coolness and courage, and when the officers of two other companies had become casualties he supervised their organisation.

T./2nd Lt. Herbert Woods, Leins. R.
For conspicuous gallantry and devotion to duty as a platoon commander. By his courage and skilful dispositions, he repelled an attempted surprise attack, with severe casualties to the enemy and captured two prisoners.

14/17108 C.S.M. William Armstrong, R. Ir. Rif.
For conspicuous gallantry and devotion to duty during an attack. By his splendid example he greatly encouraged the tired and exhausted men, on two different occasions collecting and re-organising scattered troops and leading them forward under the heaviest shell and machine-gun fire.

DIRECTOR-GENERAL OF FOOD PRODUCTION RESIGNS.

Lord Lee of Fareham announces that he has asked to be released from his post as Director-General of Food Production, and that his resignation has been accepted. He states that he is not so convinced of the defeat of the submarine peril or of the security of our food supplies for the next few years (whether the war continues or not) to be able to acquiesce in the sudden reversal of the policy for 1919 which had only recently been approved by the Cabinet.

AMERICAN NAVAL REPRESENTATIVE'S VISIT.

The Assistant Secretary of the United States Navy, Mr. Franklin Roosevelt, official representative of the United States Navy Department, has arrived in London on a tour of inspection. His position is equivalent to that of Deputy First Lord.

GENERAL COURTMARTIAL IN DUBLIN.

In the case of Lieutenant W. Phibbs Fowler (Sherwood Foresters), who was tried by Court-martial on Saturday, the Court acquitted Lieutenant Fowler, who was released from custody.

THE SWEETMEATS ORDER.

Mr. Robert Smullen, Secretary to the Irish Retail Confectioners' Association, writes to us in reference to the complaint made by Mr. William Findlater, M.A., at the meeting of Alexander Findlater and Co. in Dublin last week, as to the effect of the new Order of the Irish Food Control Committee regarding the sale of sweetmeats. Mr. Findlater gave it as his opinion—and he stated his reasons for the conclusion that he had arrived at—that if the Irish family grocer is cut out of the confectionery trade, the supply of sweets and chocolates will be transferred to England, and Ireland will, in great measure, be deprived of its portion. Mr. Smullen now says that the Order does not prevent family grocers from selling sweetmeats unless the rateable value of the premises where such business is transacted exceeds £25, and then only where the retail dealings in sweetmeats had been but a very small side line when compared with the aggregate of all the other businesses conducted on the premises. In districts where the needs of the public are not catered for to an adequate extent by legitimate confectioners, the Food Control Committee has power to grant licences to family grocers to sell sweets and chocolates. The object of the Order, Mr. Smullen says, is to divert the supplies that would be obtainable by traders with whom they would be a small side line to those who are mainly dependent on this class of trade. He adds that emporiums and large firms mainly in the grocery trade would not be compelled to cease business if their supplies of sweets and chocolates were cut off, whereas many of the smaller traders who mainly depend on the retail sweetmeats trade will be obliged to go out of business unless they can get larger supplies than are now available for them, and there are many thousands of these traders in Ireland.

Mr. Hodge, Pensions Minister, speaking at Wolverhampton yesterday, said that he had received that day £115,000 in donations towards the voluntary fund for disabled men.

LORD FRENCH AND IRISH REGENERATION.

THE YOUTH WHO STAND ASIDE.

IRELAND'S ABNORMAL PRIVILEGES.

TRAITORS AND GERMAN AGENTS.

Speaking yesterday at the opening of a Fête, in aid of sick and wounded soldiers and prisoners of war, at Rockingham, Boyle, the residence of Sir Thomas Stafford, the Lord Lieutenant said:—Sir Thomas Stafford, My Lords, Ladies, and Gentlemen,—It gives me great and peculiar pleasure to be present amongst you to-day, and to have the opportunity of assisting, in however small a degree, in promoting the patriotic objects for which this Fête is being held. In the first place, let me thank you very heartily for your most kind reception, and I am particularly grateful to Sir Thomas Stafford for the warm welcome he has extended to me, not only as His Majesty's representative, but also as an Irish soldier and neighbour and a friend. I earnestly wish I could impress upon the young men of this country the deep gratification which it gives us, one and all, to be called Irish soldiers. I should like them to understand and to enter into the thrills of pride and glory with which we remember the noble band of heroes who, throughout centuries, have, as Irish soldiers, created such a splendid military record. We feel it to be the greatest privilege of our lives to follow in their footsteps, and we rejoice to think that in the present war Irish soldiers have well and truly maintained their splendid record. It rejoices us also to know from Sir Thomas Stafford that you appreciate our work. In the course of his remarks he has referred to the wild and seditious speeches which are made from time to time in various parts of the country, and we all know of the scandalous and lying literature by which foolish, ignorant people are inclined to be sorely misled. Now, I know well that it is only the youth of this country—the majority of whom have passed little more than twenty years in the world and some considerably less—upon whom these mischievous doctrines have any effect. But then it is to the youth of the country that Ireland looks for her future welfare and prosperity. Is it not possible to turn these misguided young men to a saner mood? Why should they allow their sentiments and ideas, their national aspirations, to be guided by a handful of intriguers, many of them of foreign extraction, who have no other object in view than their own personal interest?

THEY LOVE THEIR COUNTRY.

Now, I believe it to be true that, as a whole, these young men really love their country, and honestly think that, by adopting the vicious and terrible courses which are recommended to them, they would—as they are pleased to call it—"regenerate" Ireland. I have a sort of recollection as a boy of hearing the old adage that "Satan finds some mischief still for idle hands to do." When the youth of Ireland stand aloof and look on at this terrible world struggle that is going on, and are content to remain idle in their comfortable homes, the devil is quite sure to provide them with the means of doing any amount of mischief. Now, I do not believe young Irishmen are cowards; in fact, they have proved to the hilt that they can be heroes when the necessity arises. The present war teems with evidence of it. They do not stand idly aloof because they are afraid, but because their minds are filled with mischievous sentiments and poisonous lies. Cannot they even now be induced to use the brains which God has given them?—brains which have been nourished and taught by education. Cannot they look around them and appreciate the situation for themselves? As a young man I spent several years in Ireland, and I used to travel through and visit all parts of the South and West. At that time distress and poverty were rampant everywhere, and the agricultural classes were suffering from many great grievances. The very appearance of tenements and cottages showed neglect and poverty. For a long time after that I only came to Ireland for very short visits at long intervals; but in 1907 it became part of my duty to carry out extended tours of inspection throughout the same tracts of country which had before been so familiar to me. I was absolutely astounded to observe the extraordinary change. Instead of the poverty and misery which abounded, one saw nothing but signs of happiness, prosperity, and comfort. Again, for a few years, I was very little in Ireland; but for some time lately my duty has brought me constantly into the country, and now I can see distinctly that the prosperity of which I have spoken has become still greater and larger, and, in fact, extends all over the country.

IRELAND'S PROSPERITY.

The war, which has wrought such terrible havoc, desolation, and misery in so many countries, has brought a far greater measure of wealth and prosperity to Ireland than she has ever known before. Compare her condition with that of Belgium, with Northern France, with Russia and other parts of the world, in which countries a degree of devastation exists which it will take years and years of strenuous labour to repair. The inhabitants of Ireland do not even share the dangers of the people resident in England and Scotland, living as the latter people do in most parts in dread of the deadly air bomb. In what respect, then, does Ireland stand in need of "regeneration"? Surely it is rather the "regeneration" of the youth of Ireland from these evil counsels, unpatriotic and false sentiments, that is so much needed? That our country has certain grievances I do not deny. Means have not yet been found to satisfy the just aspirations of either North or South, or to harmonise their conflicting claims. But much progress was made in this direction till the great war came upon us; but whilst the war lasts a small proportion of our thoughts it is only possible for us to give to anything except the great work of saving the Empire in this terrible time of danger. How can we really seriously stop to think of our local and domestic troubles and grievances when the world's enemy is at our gates, and when the flower of the youth of the Empire is dying around us in thousands every day?

THE PARAMOUNT NECESSITY.

If we ever dare to put our so-called grievances before the great and terrible necessity which lies before us, those grievances will most certainly be swallowed up, and will disappear in the one gigantic disaster which will overtake us; for we shall, one and all, be German slaves. And how well we know the voice of the charmer! Those foul traitors to their country who go about speaking of the beneficent rule of Germany, and how much happier Ireland would be under a German ruler, backed as they are by those articles which appear from the pens of their employers in leading German newspapers, are nothing but German agents, with a crude adaptation of the old nursery rhyme—

"Will you walk into my parlour?" said the spider to the fly:
"'Tis the prettiest little parlour that ever you did spy!"

Surely none but foolish Irish boys would be found to listen to such idiotic gammon! Still, as I said, Ireland is prosperous, and gaining prosperity every day, and there is one subject upon which both North and South are agreed—e.g., the vital necessity of keeping and improving that prosperity. Any country in the world which has so thoroughly escaped the ravages of war as Ireland has, which, like Ireland, has enjoyed abnormal privileges in the way of trade and commerce, is possessed of a prosperity which is bound to last for many years to come, and it is for us in Ireland to consider carefully now and hereafter how we can best use that prosperity by exploiting and developing the mineral resources which undoubtedly exist in many parts of the country, and in improving and turning to the best account the wonderful natural facilities which exist on the West coast of Ireland for the construction of harbours and the building of ships. I can assure you these matters are occupying the close attention of the Government of Ireland.

LOYAL AND TRUE.

For the reasons I have given, I feel sure, as Sir Thomas Stafford has said, that the bulk of the Irish people are as loyal and true to the Empire as any part of it; and our town of Boyle has given abundant evidence of this, and we are proud to know it. In the name of all soldiers in His Majesty's Army I wish to express the warm gratitude we feel towards those devoted ladies mentioned by Sir Thomas Stafford. Soldiers will never forget what the women of the British Empire have done for them in this war. Our warmest thanks are due to Sir Thomas Stafford for the use of Rockingham, and surely there can be no more beautiful setting for a Fête designed to advance so noble a cause. I know how Sir Thomas Stafford has worked in the great cause throughout this war, and, alas! how, like so many others, he has suffered. Whilst deeply grieving with him and his family, I am proud to think that the Irish Guards, the regiment to which I have the honour to belong, counts amongst those heroes who fell in the first battle of Ypres the gallant and intrepid young heir of Rockingham. In the certain hope that this Fête will have the success which it so richly deserves, I now declare it open. (Cheers.)

The Lord Lieutenant afterwards inspected the discharged Boyle soldiers who had gathered to greet him.

Mr. Bonar Law announced, in the House of Commons yesterday, that the Cabinet would consider the provisional agreement regarding the exchange of prisoners before the recess. He could not promise that the agreement would be laid on the table before it had been ratified.

Major Astor, Parliamentary Secretary to the Ministry of Food, stated, in the House of Commons yesterday, that he would shortly make an announcement as to his proposals for the distribution of the 1918 potato crop.

LONDON CORRESPONDENCE.

59 FLEET STREET, LONDON,
MONDAY NIGHT.

Some details of General Foch's career given by an Allied officer to the Evening Standard are new to me. It was largely due to his advice, it seems, that we did not withdraw from the Ypres salient in the autumn of 1914. Similarly it was he who, after the Caporetto disaster, persuaded the Italian military authorities not to withdraw to the line of the Adige, by proving to them not only that the Piave could be defended, but how it could be defended. As a strategist he is all in favour of the war of movement, but his belief in the offensive is combined with marvellous patience, which has enabled him to wait through these anxious months until he felt himself strong enough to deliver a really effective blow.

While full details are lacking, it is reported that the French offensive continues to make progress between the Ourcq and the Marne. Slower movement must be expected now, since the enemy are in a position at present to make violent counter-attacks. That the French have succeeded in establishing their positions across the Marne is a highly satisfactory feature of the situation. Many people have an idea that the Allies will be able to drive the Germans back over the Aisne in the present offensive, and capture all the guns and material now in the German salient. Such anticipations are rather too optimistic. The Germans will be in a position to make a desperate stand long before the Aisne is reached, and it is useless to expect the impossible at once. If a German débâcle set in, anything might happen, but at present there is no indication of such a thing. The victory won by the Allies is of very great importance, but it can be regarded only as a part of a general plan. There will be much heavy fighting before the Germans are driven over the Aisne again.

A notable feature of the war situation is the reception of the news of the French success by neutrals. The pro-German newspapers in Sweden give the communiqués of the belligerents in parallel columns, but one paper gives as a headline in enormous type: "The Germans Have Retired to the North Bank of the Marne," and another: "Reverses Increasing for the German Arms." No attempt is made for once to minimise the importance of the Allied success. This is a change, and a welcome one. It shows that, once the fear of Germany is removed, the neutrals will not hesitate to be outspoken.

The Chief Secretary for Ireland is deeply impressed with the necessity for developing industries in Ireland, and he has made strong representations to the Treasury and other departments that as great facility as possible should be given for their encouragement. Especially is he impressed, I understand, with the Arigna Railway proposal and that for developing the lignite resources of the country without delay. He recognises that the latter will be very valuable in view of a coal shortage in the winter.

The Irish Unionist members are making anxious inquiries concerning the investigation which has been promised by the Executive into the financial position of the teachers in elementary and secondary schools in Ireland, and I hear that Sir Edward Carson is again specially interesting himself in the subject. The Chief Secretary and his assistants are still engaged in organising the two committees that are proposed in the matter, but there is no official information so far as to names. Some questions may be put in the House on the subject before the week is out.

In the House of Commons to-day the Lords' amendments to the Londonderry Corporation Bill were accepted, and the Sligo Bill was read a third time. The Sligo Corporation Bill was ordered for third reading to-morrow.

The leader of the House is evidently determined that the adjournment of the House early in August shall not be prevented if he can help it, and he showed a stern front to various members who wanted days for discussion of the Indian reform proposals and other matters. Moreover, he intimated that he hoped to get no fewer than eight of the orders on the paper during to-day's sitting, and for that purpose proposed the suspension of the eleven o'clock rule. This was agreed to after somewhat futile protests from Sir Frederick Banbury and Mr. Pringle.

FETE AT ROCKINGHAM.

OPENED BY THE LORD LIEUTENANT.

Although but changeable weather favoured the Fête held there yesterday for the benefit of sick and wounded soldiers and prisoners of war, the delightful grounds of Rockingham, Boyle, the residence of Sir Thomas Stafford, were visited by a very large number of people. Some of them came many miles to the Fête, some by motor car, while others favoured the humble "ass-cart." All alike were charmed with their journey through the well-known beech avenue, which was like a glimpse of fairyland, an impression of Rockingham strengthened by the wonderful view over Lake Key when, at mid-day, the mist unveiled its beauties. Some idea of the Fête can be gathered when it is said that three banks in Boyle—the branches of the Bank of Ireland, the Northern Banking Company, and the National Bank—kept their doors closed for the day, while five hundred tickets were paid for before the Fête opened, and by one o'clock there was a constant succession of vehicles arriving at the mansion. Boyle has a good record in the King's service. Out of a population of some 1,600, it has to its honour twenty lives given in defence of honour and country; some fifty of the townsmen have been wounded, and there are many missing, while at the Fête there were thirty-three men who have given all the service of which they are capable. Among them were five Conroys, five Dodds, and three McGoverns, one of them wearing the D.C.M. Of amusement there was no lack. The grounds themselves, in which there are about forty miles of roads, afforded in themselves a field of enjoyment, while for those seeking other diversion than the scenery afforded there were golf putting and other competitions, motor boat trips on the lake, and military sports under the direction of a thrice wounded Mons hero, Lieutenant Parker, Sussex Yeomanry, who is a well-known boxer, while District Inspector Kearney, of Boyle, had charge of the police side of the sports. The stewards were—Sports—Messrs. A. MacLeod, P. C. P. MacDermot, W. S. Sloan, R. Oddart. Concerts—Colonel Kirkwood, Messrs. D. MacDermot, J. Gillespie, and A. V. Browne. Stalls—Mr. J. Merrick Lloyd and Dr. Hamilton. Refreshments—Dr. White, Messrs. M. Cunningham, F. Anderson, and T. F. N. Murphy. Motors and Transport—Mr. D. Beirne. Judge of Open Events—Mr. A. McLeod. Motor Boats—Messrs. F. Monson, R. Boles, and Dr. Leyland.

Concerts, arranged by Mrs. Kirkwood, were given in the afternoon and evening in the grand gallery. In the conservatory there were a few stalls, and on the Fancy Stall was to be seen a piece of Limerick lace two hundred years old, which was raffled. The stallholders were—Home Produce, Mrs. Lloyd, assisted by Lady De Freyne; Bag and Basket, Mrs. MacDermot; Fancy Stall, Mrs. J. F. Murphy, assisted by Mrs. ffolliott and Miss Mary ffolliott. Mrs. W. S. Sloan organised the competitions. Mrs. Wagner, assisted by Mrs. MacLeod, the luncheons; and Miss Fry the teas. Major J. F. Murphy was the General Secretary for the Fête. The success which it achieved showed that the arrangements could not have been in better hands, and constituted a reward for untiring genial effort.

THE OPENING.

The Fête was formally opened by the Lord Lieutenant, who motored over from Drumdoe, which lies at the other end of the lake. He drove up quietly, and was received by Sir Thomas Stafford, who had in his house party Lord and Lady Powerscourt, Lord and Lady Granard, Lord and Lady De Freyne, Major O'Hara, H.M.L.; Mr. W. J. Talbot, H.M.L.; The O'Conor Don, Mrs. K. Stafford King-Harman, and Mrs. Cecil Stafford.

The Viceroy, after lunch, came to the lawn on the south side of the mansion, and his appearance was acknowledged by massed bands of the Suffolk and Sussex Yeomanry playing the National Anthem.

[His Excellency's speech in opening the Fête will be found in another column.]

Captain Froneman and Lieutenant Beacher[illegible] were killed while flying near Ascot on Sunday evening.

FROM "THE TIMES" OF TO-DAY.

(BY SPECIAL ARRANGEMENT WITH THE PROPRIETORS OF THE TIMES.)

THE PRIME MINISTER'S POSITION.

In a leading article to-day The Times discusses the prospects which a General Election in the autumn will bring into view. It assumes, for various reasons, that a General Election will be inevitable as soon as October brings in the new register, and that Mr. Lloyd George realises this, and that he has, in fact, decided to make his appeal to the country whenever the circumstances of the war permit the fullest possible representation of the new electorate. But the next Parliament, The Times proceeds, will succeed to the control of the war at a moment of critical importance. All the efforts of four years will depend on its character. If the splendid spirit of the race (which The Times believes to be essentially sound despite signs of activity among "pacifists" and doctrinaires who have not faced realities) is to dominate the next Parliament, then the leaders, and especially the Prime Minister, must make up their minds at once to embody it themselves. The next step must be to eliminate the handicap of compromise or party bargain, and to secure for a Government of unimpeachable determination the backing of an equally resolute Parliament. If Mr. Lloyd George (continues The Times) is to lead such a Government, as we believe that he can if he will, he has two immediate tasks before him. The first is to set out in unmistakable language the objects for which he claims a mandate. He must tell us precisely the policy for which he stands in war and reconstruction. It need be no extensive programme, but it must be definite and thorough. There must be no loophole in it for compromise with any half-hearted element in the community, no room for a backstairs bargain with "defeatism" and reaction. He cannot, in any case, escape all opposition. The essential point, both for himself and for the country, is that he should range himself finally, and beyond all question, with the robust national spirit which placed him where he is. And the second task before him is to make an end, once for all, of obstruction and incompetence wherever the last two years have revealed it. It is quite certain that a sweeping overhaul of his whole administrative machine is the first condition of any successful appeal to the country.

CHATEAU THIERRY SACKED.

A Special Correspondent of The Times with the Americans telegraphs, under Sunday's date:—The Germans evacuated Château Thierry this morning, the first troops leaving at 4 o'clock, and the last, four telephonists, who were subsequently captured, at 8.30. Two hours later I was talking to inhabitants who had remained in the town, and I spent an hour and a half wandering about the place. It is difficult to indicate in mere words the emotions of these people here. A poor old lady of 87, with tears in her eyes, grasped my hand, and fervently bade me welcome. She told me that the Germans, except for the habit of not paying for what they had taken, had treated her well, and she in return had looked after their wounded. She had lived in a cellar during the whole period of the occupation, having little to eat, but living in the hope that some day the soldiers of France would once more enter Château Thierry. Last night, together with the other inhabitants, who numbered in all about 200 women and children, she was ordered to take her mattress and sleep in the church. They were forbidden to leave during the night. Nothing was explained to them, and all night long they lay there in great suspense. A shattered roof, a broken window, a derelict motor car, a shell-scarred interior, with everything thrown about in wild confusion, were their companions for the night. At 8.30 this morning the door was opened, and they were told by four German non-commissioned officers that they might return to their homes. Then they found out why they had been sent to the church. The Germans had left, taking everything with them, and leaving behind a derelict town that seemed as if an earthquake had visited it.

SHOPPING IN BERLIN.

The Vossische Zeitung, says The Times, gives the following picture of shopping in Berlin:—A shop in the Leipziger Strasse—A Customer sees a display of turnips, and asks, "Could I have some of that?" "Have you brought a bag with you?" "No, Fraulein, I thought I could have it wrapped up." With a glance of complete contempt the shop girl says, "This is not a paper shop." A fish shop—"Fraulein, what can I buy?" "Nothing." "When will you have anything?" "To-morrow at eleven." Next day at eleven the customer comes, and asks, "Have you got anything nice, my dear Fraulein?" "We sold out at eight." "But, Fraulein, you said that you would be selling at eleven?" "Nothing of the kind; keep your ears open." An empty shop in which the proprietor is sitting, with his assistant adding up his accounts. A lady comes in and waits patiently. At last she summons up courage and asks, "Could I have a pound of gelatine?" "You can have a quarter of a pound for 6s. 6d.," says the assistant. Shocked at the price, the lady asks demurely what a whole pound would cost. Then the storm breaks out. The proprietor shrieks, "If you don't like my price, you can leave it." Abused by the shopman, the customer disappears.

THE NATIONALISTS RETURN.

The Irish Nationalist members, says The Times, return to the House of Commons to-day after three months' absence. Their intention, no doubt, is to make a demonstration before the recess, but the prospect has aroused little interest at Westminster. The feeling is still general that Mr. Dillon made a bad blunder in adopting Sinn Fein tactics, and withdrawing his party from Westminster after the passing of the Military Service Act. He entirely misunderstood the trend of feeling in Great Britain, more particularly in the Liberal Party, and it will be a very unsympathetic House of Commons when he re-enters to-day. Mr. Shortt was at Westminster yesterday, and it is understood, is perfectly ready to meet any criticisms which the Nationalists may make upon his and Lord French's administration.

MR. SERJEANT SULLIVAN AND RECRUITING.

A RECORD OF EVERY MAN IN THE COUNTRY.

Yesterday Mr. Serjeant Sullivan attended a meeting of the Council of the Cork Chamber of Commerce and delivered an address on recruiting. Mr. A. R. McMullen, President, was in the chair. Serjeant Sullivan said that the recruiting problem was one vitally affecting the city and county of Cork. Pioneers of industry had begun to appreciate the opportunities for commercial development afforded by the Valley of the Lee, and now menacing that development was the exasperation and excitement following the proposal to enforce conscription. It was everyone's duty to try to avert it. Some practical scheme to avert conscription was needed. The Irish Recruiting Council had asked him to detail their scheme, the only practical one to save the country from disaster. Ireland had been divided into ten areas, each of which would be assigned its quota of men. An area such as Down and Antrim, where voluntary conscription could have it, while Cork City and County, which also constituted an area, would be free itself, by its own exertions, regardless of the conduct of its neighbours. He understood that a perfect registration machinery was behind the scenes in Ireland. The thing had been done quietly, and the authorities had now a record of every man in the country, his residence, and occupation.

A QUESTION OF DIVIDENDS.

The House of Commons yesterday went into Committee on the Statutory Undertakings (Temporary Increase of Charges) Bill.

On Clause 1, which provides for modifications of statutory provisions affecting charges where the Board of Trade are satisfied that the financial position of any undertaking has been adversely affected by circumstances arising out of the war,

Mr. Tennant moved that the undertakings, instead of being able to pay half the standard or maximum rate of dividend, should be able to pay three-quarters of their pre-war dividend.

By 124 votes to 52 it was decided to eliminate the word "half" from the bill, and, on a further division, it was decided, by 118 votes to 42, to substitute the word "three-quarters." Therefore, the bill passed through Committee.

Madame Trotzky, according to a Reuter's telegram, is reported to have arrived in Stockholm with two million roubles for foreign propaganda.

THE BRITISH FRONT.

AN OMINOUS SILENCE.

GOOD ANTI-AIRCRAFT WORK.

The Press Association's Correspondent, at the Correspondents' Headquarters of the British Army in France, writing on Monday, says:—Another of those spells of quiet, which in these times we are, perhaps, not unnaturally inclined to regard as ominous, has fallen upon the British front. We have consolidated all our gains in Rossignol Wood, despite some heavy shelling and a small and half-hearted bombing attack yesterday morning, which was easily dispersed, and we have added six prisoners to our captures in this place. In addition, we have collected one machine gun and a flammenwerfer from the old enemy posts within the wood.

In the neighbourhood of Meteren the Germans have expended a good many shells, but have shown no other signs of attempting to dispute our recent advance. In the comparatively clear weather of yesterday our gunners carried out some rigorous counter-battery work, and how effective this was may be gauged when I say that in one area alone they completely destroyed one big gun pit, damaging three others, causing five explosions, and started three fires in battery emplacements. Prisoners state that there have been many casualties behind the German lines from our recent gas shelling. A soldier of the 121st Reserve Infantry Regiment, who was taken near La Signy Farm, says that more than fifty men died as the result of one of our gas projector bombardments in his battalion alone. It has been noticeable of late that the enemy artillery spotting 'planes are flying much higher than heretofore, seldom coming lower than 10,000 feet. This is a most practical tribute to the enhanced efficiency of our anti-aircraft defences, and, unless the weather is abnormally clear, it must considerably minimise the utility of the observers' work.

BRITISH TROOPS IN ACTION.

GERMANS FORCED BACK.

The Press Association's Special Correspondent with the French Army in France, telegraphing at 11 p.m. on Sunday says:—

Under the continuous pressure of the Allied troops the enemy's salient between the Aisne and the Marne has been considerably reduced during the day. The Germans have apparently resigned themselves to extensive loss of ground between the two rivers. On the other hand, they are clinging with the utmost determination to their positions among the woods and hills of the Montagne de Reims between the Marne and the plain of Rheims. The fighting in this sector is extraordinarily bitter. Our Highland and North Country troops, who were sent into the battle yesterday were again heavily engaged to-day. In spite of the masses of fresh troops which the Germans brought up, the Franco-British troops made further progress to-day. The villages of Sainte Euphraise and Bouilly, north of the Ardre, were captured by the British after a desperate fight. The enemy has been driven across Courton Woods, and is now fighting on their western edge. Further south the enemy maintained himself in Bois du Roi. Between the Aisne and the Marne our progress has been more rapid. North of the Ourcq we have crossed the Soissons-Château Thierry road at several points, but the Germans are fighting with great obstinacy for Soissons. South of the Ourcq, where the enemy is pressed not only from the west but from the south by French troops who crossed the river, the enemy's rate of retreat is more rapid still. The line now runs through the villages of La Croix, Grisolles, and Epieds, which means an advance of five miles from the west, and about three miles from the south.

The heights east of the villages of La Croix and Grisolles were stormed by the French infantry.

In the enemy positions south of the Marne we took 400 machine guns and 30 cannon, including two heavy guns.

ITALY AND ALBANIA.

ITALIAN REPORT.

Monday.

Hostile activity was effectively countered by our artillery in the region of the Tonale.

In the Brenta Valley and on the New Piave our batteries carried out harassing fire at different points, dispersing working parties in the Mount Cevedale area and motor lorry columns along the Piave.

Two enemy aeroplanes were brought down in air fighting.

Our troops are continuing to gain ground in the bend of the Devoli.

About 100 prisoners and seven machine guns were captured.

AUSTRIAN DESPATCH.

Monday.

There is nothing of importance to report on the Italian front.

In Albania, three days ago, the enemy renewed his attacks north of Berat and in the Upper Devoli Valley. Excepting for local fluctuations, he did not succeed anywhere in obtaining advantages.

Fighting is still in progress.

THREATENED STRIKE AVERTED.

The threatened strike of Coventry munition workers who were to cease work last night has been averted. The three local trade bodies met yesterday and recommended the workers to suspend the notices pending a national conference of the joint engineering allied trades at an early date. This decision, says the Press Association's Correspondent, was come to apparently without outside pressure, although the Mayor of Coventry had for some days been endeavouring to persuade the men not to strike.

The Ministry of Munitions issued the following last evening:—A meeting held at Coventry this morning passed the following resolution:—"That this meeting could not accept the Government's terms. Further, that we recommend to the workshop representatives' aggregate meeting that we suspend our notices pending a national conference of the joint allied trades to which we shall send delegates in order that all skilled workers shall cease work upon a given date. The said conference to be held at an early date."

STATEMENT BY MR. CHURCHILL.

In the House of Commons yesterday Mr. Churchill, Minister of Munitions, replying to Mr. W. Thorne, said his attention had been drawn to the terms of a notice as to increasing the district rate of wages issued by a firm at Coventry. The notice was not official, and the Minister of Munitions was not responsible for its wording. It appeared to be an inaccurate summary of instructions issued by the Ministry of Munitions, and only to have been posted according to his information in the works of a single firm in Coventry. There was, of course, no question of any reduction in the district rate of wages. Steps had been taken to make that clear. There was at the present time an unsatisfied demand for skilled men to the extent of between 50,000 and 60,000, for whom war work could be immediately found. Skilled men, therefore, had an enormous choice of employment open to them, and this was not appreciably affected by the fact that, in the present scarcity of skilled labour, the Ministry could not allow firms who had already more than their proper share to add to their staffs. He had seen the statement of the General Secretary of the Boilermakers' Society. The action of the Ministry of Munitions was an extension of the proposals made [illegible]. On the contrary, it was clearly foreshadowed to him (Mr. Churchill) as one of the contingent on the abolition of the [illegible] scheme as far back as August [illegible] last year. Mr. Churchill read the words [illegible] and continued that he [illegible] that what was taking place [illegible] which an embargo had been [illegible] "poaching." "Poaching" should not be defined as "bribing" men away from [illegible]. He did not make that [illegible] overstaffing and the reasons for [illegible] overstaffing belonged rather to [illegible] "poaching," and therefore [illegible] covered by the statement [illegible] the House nearly a year ago [illegible] both for engaging additional volunteers and for restricting engagements by certain firms, were fully explained to the Trade Union Advisory Committee in April last and again in June. That Committee was not asked to take the responsibility which properly belonged to the Government, and he had never said they were to blame for an unfair burden upon them. At the same time it was right to say that in the course of those conferences led all who were present to the conviction that trade unionists, and workers generally throughout the country, were resolved to repair the damage which the military disasters of March last had caused, and to support the national cause by every means in their power, and especially by liberating men and making munitions. To that conviction the Ministry had adhered with the utmost confidence.

Mr. W. Thorne asked what efforts were being made to avoid this threatened awful calamity. Did the right hon. gentleman know that the Executive of the Amalgamated Society of Engineers deprecated the action taken?

Mr. Churchill—I know that every effort has been made by responsible trade union leaders to remove misunderstanding, and I am in close touch and consultation with them.

LONDON CORRESPONDENCE.

59 FLEET STREET, LONDON, Monday Night.

Some details of General Foch's career given by an Allied officer to the Evening Standard are new to me. It was largely due to his advice, it seems, that we did not withdraw from the Ypres salient in the autumn of 1914. Similarly it was he who, after the Caporetto disaster, persuaded the Italian military authorities not to withdraw to the line of the Adige, by proving to them not only that the Piave could be defended, but how it could be defended. As a strategist he is all in favour of the war of movement, but his belief in the offensive is combined with marvellous patience, which has enabled him to wait through these anxious months until he felt himself strong enough to deliver a really effective blow.

While full details are lacking, it is reported that the French offensive continues to make progress between the Ourcq and the Marne. Slower movement must be expected now, since the enemy are in a position at present to make violent counter-attacks. That the French have succeeded in establishing their positions across the Marne is a highly satisfactory feature of the situation. Many people have an idea that the Allies will be able to drive the Germans back over the Aisne in the present offensive, and capture all the guns and material now in the German salient. Such anticipations are rather too optimistic. The Germans will be in a position to make a desperate stand long before the Aisne is reached, and it is useless to expect the impossible at once. If a German débâcle set in, anything might happen, but at present there is no indication of such a thing. The victory won by the Allies is of very great importance, but it can be regarded only as a part of a general plan. There will be much heavy fighting before the Germans are driven over the Aisne again.

A notable feature of the war situation is the reception of the news of the French success by neutrals. The pro-German newspapers in Sweden give the communiques of the belligerents in parallel columns, but one paper gives as a headline in enormous type: "The Germans have Retired to the North Bank of the Marne," and another: "Reverses Increasing for the German Arms." No attempt is made for once to minimise the importance of the Allied success. This is a change, and a welcome one. It shows that, once the fear of Germany is removed, the neutrals will not hesitate to be outspoken.

The Chief Secretary for Ireland is deeply impressed with the necessity for developing industries in Ireland, and he has made strong representations to the Treasury and other departments that as great facility as possible should be given for their encouragement. Especially is he impressed, I understand, with the Arigna Railway proposal and that for developing the lignite resources of the country without delay. He recognises that the latter will be very valuable in view of a coal shortage in the winter.

The Irish Unionist members are making anxious inquiries concerning the investigation which has been promised by the Executive into the financial position of the teachers in elementary and secondary schools in Ireland, and I hear that Sir Edward Carson is again specially interesting himself in the subject. The Chief Secretary and his assistants are still engaged in organising the two committees that are proposed in the matter, but there is no official information so far as to names. Some questions may be put in the House on the subject before the week is out.

In the House of Commons to-day the Lords' amendments to the Londonderry Corporation Bill were accepted, and the Bill was read a third time. The Sligo Corporation Bill was ordered for third reading to-morrow.

The leader of the House is evidently determined that the adjournment of the House early in August shall not be prevented if he can help it, and he showed a stern front to various members who wanted days for discussion of the Indian reform proposals and other matters. Moreover, he intimated that he hoped to get no fewer than eight of the orders on the paper during to-day's sitting, and for that purpose proposed the suspension of the eleven o'clock rule. This was agreed to after somewhat futile protests from Sir Frederick Banbury and Mr. Pringle.

FETE AT ROCKINGHAM.

OPENED BY THE LORD LIEUTENANT.

Although but changeable weather favoured the Fête held there yesterday for the benefit of sick and wounded soldiers and prisoners of war, the delightful grounds of Rockingham, Boyle, the residence of Sir Thomas Stafford, were visited by a very large number of people. Some of them came many miles to the Fête, some by motor car, while others favoured the humble "ass-cart." All alike were charmed with their journey through the well-known beech avenue, which was like a glimpse of fairyland, an impression of Rockingham strengthened by the wonderful view over Lake Key when, at mid-day, the mist unveiled its beauties. Some idea of the Fête can be gathered when it is said that three banks in Boyle—the branches of the Bank of Ireland, the Northern Banking Company, and the National Bank—kept their doors closed for the day, while five hundred tickets were paid for before the Fête opened, and by one o'clock there was a constant succession of vehicles arriving at the mansion. Boyle has a good record in the King's service. Out of a population of some 1,600, it has to its honour twenty lives given in defence of honour and country; some fifty of the townsmen have been wounded, and there are many missing, while at the Fête there were thirty-three men who have given all the service of which they are capable. Among them were five Conroys, five Dodds, and three McGoverns, one of them wearing the D.C.M. Of amusement there was no lack. The grounds themselves, in which there are about forty miles of roads, afforded in themselves a field of enjoyment, while for those seeking other diversion than the scenery afforded there were golf putting and other competitions, motor boat trips on the lake, and military sports under the direction of a thrice wounded Mons hero, Lieutenant Parker, Sussex Yeomanry, who is a well-known boxer, while District Inspector Kearney, of Boyle, had charge of the police side of the sports. The stewards were—Sports—Messrs. A. MacLeod, P. C. P. MacDermot, W. S. Sloan, R. Odbert. Concerts—Colonel Kirkwood, Messrs. D. MacDermot, J. Gillespie, and A. V. Browne. Stalls—Mr. J. Merrick Lloyd and Dr. Hamilton. Refreshments—Dr. White, Messrs. M. Cunningham, F. Anderson, and T. F. N. Murphy. Motors and Transport—Mr. D. Beirne. Judge of Open Events—Mr. A. McLeod. Motor Boats—Messrs. F. Monson, R. Boles, and Dr. Leyland.

Concerts, arranged by Mrs. Kirkwood, were given in the afternoon and evening in the grand gallery. In the conservatory there were a few stalls, and on the Fancy Stall was to be seen a piece of Limerick lace two hundred years old, which was raffled. The stallholders were—Home Produce, Mrs. Lloyd, assisted by Lady De Freyne; Bag and Basket, Mrs. MacDermot; Fancy Stall, Mrs. J. F. Murphy, assisted by Mrs. ffolliott and Miss Mary ffolliott. Mrs. W. The success which it achieved showed that the arrangements could not have been in better hands, and constituted a reward for untiring genial effort.

THE BRITISH FRONT.

AN OMINOUS SILENCE.

GOOD ANTI-AIRCRAFT WORK.

The Press Association's Correspondent, at the Correspondents' Headquarters of the British Army in France, writing on Monday, says:—Another of those spells of quiet, which in these times we are, perhaps, not unnaturally inclined to regard as ominous, has fallen upon the British front. We have consolidated all our gains in Rossignol Wood, despite some heavy shelling and a small and half-hearted bombing attack yesterday morning, which was easily dispersed, and we have added six prisoners to our captures in this place. In addition, we have collected one machine gun and a flammenwerfer from the old enemy posts within the wood.

In the neighbourhood of Meteren the Germans have expended a good many shells, but have shown no other signs of attempting to dispute our recent advance. In the comparatively clear weather of yesterday our gunners carried out some rigorous counter-battery work, and how effective this was may be gauged when I say that in one area alone they completely destroyed one big gun pit, damaging three others, causing five explosions, and started three fires in battery emplacements. Prisoners state that there have been many casualties behind the German lines from our recent gas shelling. A soldier of the 121st Reserve Infantry Regiment, who was taken near La Signy Farm, says that more than fifty men died as the result of one of our gas projector bombardments in his battalion alone. It has been noticeable of late that the enemy artillery spotting 'planes are flying much higher than heretofore, seldom coming lower than 10,000 feet. This is a most practical tribute to the enhanced efficiency of our anti-aircraft defences, and, unless the weather is abnormally clear, it must considerably minimise the utility of the observers' work.

GERMANS FORCED BACK.

The Press Association's Special Correspondent with the French Army in France, telegraphing at 11 p.m. on Sunday says:—

Under the continuous pressure of the Allied troops the enemy's salient between the Aisne and the Marne has been considerably reduced during the day. The Germans have apparently resigned themselves to extensive loss of ground between the two rivers. On the other hand, they are clinging with the utmost determination to their positions among the woods and hills of the Montagne de Reims between the Marne and the plain of Rheims. The fighting in this sector is extraordinarily bitter. Our Highland and North Country troops, who were sent into the battle yesterday were again heavily engaged to-day. In spite of the masses of fresh troops which the Germans brought up, the Franco-British troops made further progress to-day. The villages of Sainte Euphraise and Bouilly, north of the Ardre, were captured by the British after a desperate fight. The enemy has been driven across Courton Woods, and is now fighting on their western edge. Further south the enemy maintained himself in Bois du Roi. Between the Aisne and the Marne our progress has been more rapid. North of the Ourcq we have crossed the Soissons-Château Thierry road at several points, but the Germans are fighting with great obstinacy for Soissons. South of the Ourcq, where the enemy is pressed not only from the west but from the south by French troops who crossed the river, the enemy's rate of retreat is more rapid still. The line now runs through the villages of La Croix, Grisolles, and Epieds, which means an advance of five miles from the west, and about three miles from the south.

The heights east of the villages of La Croix and Grisolles were stormed by the French infantry.

In the enemy positions south of the Marne we took 400 machine guns and 30 cannon, including two heavy guns.

ITALY AND ALBANIA.

ITALIAN REPORT.

Monday.

Hostile activity was effectively countered by our artillery in the region of the Tonale.

In the Brenta Valley and on the New Piave our batteries carried out harassing fire at different points, dispersing working parties in the Mount Cevedale area and motor lorry columns along the Piave.

Two enemy aeroplanes were brought down in air fighting.

Our troops are continuing to gain ground in the bend of the Devoli.

About 100 prisoners and seven machine guns were captured.

AUSTRIAN DESPATCH.

Monday.

There is nothing of importance to report on the Italian front.

In Albania, three days ago, the enemy renewed his attacks north of Berat and in the Upper Devoli Valley. Excepting for local fluctuations, he did not succeed anywhere in obtaining advantages.

THREATENED STRIKE AVERTED.

The threatened strike of Coventry munition workers who were to cease work last night has been averted. The three local trade bodies met yesterday and recommended the workers to suspend the notices pending a national conference of the joint engineering allied trades at an early date. This decision, says the Press Association's Correspondent, was come to apparently without outside pressure, although the Mayor of Coventry had for some days been endeavouring to persuade the men not to call a strike.

The Ministry of Munitions issued the following last evening:—A meeting held at Coventry this morning passed the following resolution:—"That this meeting could not accept the Government's letter. Further, that we recommend to the workshop representatives' aggregate meeting that we suspend our notices pending a national conference of the joint allied trades to which we shall send delegates in order that all skilled workers shall cease work upon a given date. The said conference to be held at an early date."

STATEMENT BY MR. CHURCHILL.

In the House of Commons yesterday, Mr. Churchill, Minister of Munitions, replying to Mr. W. Thorne, said his attention had been drawn to the terms of a notice as to destroying the district rate of wages issued by a firm at Coventry. The notice was not official, and the Minister of Munitions was not responsible for its wording. It appeared to be an inaccurate summary of instructions issued by the Ministry of Munitions, and only to have been posted—according to his information—in the works of a single firm in Coventry. There was, of course, no question of any reduction in the district rate of wages. Steps had been taken to make that clear. There was at the present time an unsatisfied demand for skilled men to the extent of between 50,000 and 60,000, for whom war work could be immediately found. Skilled men, therefore, had an enormous choice of employment open to them, and this was not appreciably affected by the fact that in the present scarcity of skilled labour the Ministry could not allow firms who had already more than their proper share to add to their staffs. He had seen the statement of Mr. John Hill, General Secretary of the Boilermakers' Society. The action of the Ministry of Munitions was no extension of the proposals made in June last. On the contrary, it was clearly foreshadowed by him (Mr. Churchill) as one of the safeguards contingent on the abolition of the leaving certificate as far back as August 15 of last year. Mr. Churchill read the words of his speech referred to, and continued that he did not wish to say that what was taking place in the firms on which an embargo had been placed constituted "poaching." "Poaching" should properly be defined as "bribing" men away from other firms. He did not make that accusation at all; but overstaffing and the readiness to exaggerate overstaffing belonged rather to the realm of potential "poaching," and therefore was entirely covered by the statement he made to the House nearly a year ago. These proposals, both for engaging additional war munition volunteers and for restricting overstaffing by certain firms, were fully explained to the Trade Union Advisory Committee in April last and again in June. That Committee was not asked to take the responsibility which properly belonged to the Government, and he had never sought to throw an unfair burden upon them. At the same time, it was right to say that the result of those conferences led all who were present to the conviction that trade unionists, and workmen generally throughout the country, were resolved to repair the damage which the military disasters of March last had caused, and to support the national cause by every means in their power, and especially by liberating men and making munitions. To that conviction the Ministry still adhered with the utmost confidence.

Mr. W. Thorne asked what efforts were being made to avoid this threatened awful calamity. Did the right hon. gentleman know that the Executive of the Amalgamated Society of Engineers deprecated the action taken?

Mr. Churchill—I know that every effort has been made by responsible trade union leaders to remove misunderstanding, and I am in close touch and consultation with them.

GERMANS STILL FALL BACK.

FURTHER RETREAT FORETOLD.

FRENCH CAPTURES OF MEN AND GUNS.

PROGRESS DESPITE HEAVY FIGHTING.

ANOTHER BRITISH ADVANCE.

Reports from the Marne front indicate that the Germans in the region between the Marne and the Ardre are blowing up ammunition dumps and burning stores—the steps preliminary to a further retreat.

The French reports show that during Thursday night the enemy's activity was confined chiefly to artillery work north of the Ourcq and between the Marne and Rheims.

Between the Ourcq and the Marne the French broke up strong counter-attacks and maintained their positions everywhere. South of the Marne they have taken upwards of 1,000 prisoners and 45 guns.

The German despatches speak of the failure of the enemy, with heavy loss, in all directions.

South-east of Hebuterne the British during Sunday night gained further ground.

South of Arras and east of Nieppe Forest the German artillery has been more active.

FRENCH REPORTS.

Monday.

In the course of the night the enemy confined himself to replying with his artillery north of the Ourcq and between the Marne and Rheims, notably in the Bois de Courton and the Bois du Roi.

Between the Ourcq and the Marne we broke up strong enemy counter-attacks in the region of Groiselles and Bezu-St. Germain.

We have everywhere maintained our positions.

Monday Night.

During the day the Germans attempted, by powerful counter-attacks, to stop our progress between the Marne and the Ourcq.

Franco-American troops resisted all the enemy's assaults, and further increased their progress. We have passed beyond the heights east of La Croix and Grisolles, captured the village of Epieds, and gained ground north-east of Mont St. Pere.

Between the Marne and Rheims hard fighting has taken place, which gave no advantage to the enemy.

We maintain our lines in Courton and Roi Woods.

Further north the British troops advanced, taking 200 prisoners and capturing 40 machine guns.

North of the Ourcq and on the Champagne front great artillery activity is reported, without infantry action.

During the day of July 21st the activity of our bombing aeroplanes continued to be very great, in spite of very poor weather. In the course of the day and night expeditions 50 tons of projectiles were dropped on the enemy's lines of communication, cantonments, and bivouacs of the Vesle and Ardre Valleys, and on the railway stations of Laon, Fismes, Berry au Bac, etc. Fere en Tardenois, crowded with troops and convoys, was the object of very violent bombardments, as the result of which an immense fire, followed by several explosions, was observed. Another fire broke out at Fismes Railway Station. In addition several tens of thousands of rounds of cartridges were fired on German troops and batteries, which had been very active, and which were reduced to silence, in the region of Courmont, Roncheres, and Villeneuve. During the same day our crews shot down nine enemy machines.

AMERICAN DESPATCH.

Monday.

Between the Aisne and the Marne the day has brought fresh successes to our troops.

With undiminished vigour and strength they have continued to force the enemy to yield bitterly contested positions.

In the fighting of the past few days more than 6,000 prisoners, 100 cannon, and many trench mortars and machine guns have been take by our divisions.

GERMAN REPORTS.

Monday.

Army Group of the German Crown Prince—Between the Aisne and the Marne the battle continues with undiminished violence.

In spite of his heavy defeat on July 20th, the enemy, bringing into action fresh divisions and tanks which had been freshly brought up, again advanced to violent attack, against our lines. Prisoners confirm the enemy's heavy losses.

Yesterday's fighting again resulted in a complete success for the German arms.

Between the Aisne and south-west of Hartennes, in the early morning, the strongest drum-fire preceded infantry attacks by the enemy, south-west of Soissons, and south-west of Hartennes. They broke down in front of our lines.

North of Villemontoire some of the enemy pushed forward temporarily over the Soissons-Château Thierry road. Our counter-attack completely threw them back again.

Villemontoire and Tigny were also the foci of the battle, which our counter-attacks brought to a favourable conclusion.

In the evening renewed enemy attacks south-west of Soissons were checked at their starting point. Where they were carried out at all they broke down with heavy losses.

On both sides of the Ourcq in the forenoon, the enemy in vain frequently advanced against our lines. After bringing up fresh forces he returned to the attack in the afternoon.

After heavy fighting, the enemy's assault on both sides of Oulchy le Château was defeated by counter-attacks.

North and north-east of Château Thierry our detachments, which have been left in the forefield, hindered the approach of the enemy to our new lines. It was not till the evening that he succeeded in launching strong attacks here, which broke down with heavy losses to the enemy.

There has been artillery activity on the Marne front.

Between the Marne and the Ardre the British and the French continued their attacks. They were sanguinarily repulsed.

Army Group of Duke Albrecht—A successful attack has been made on the enemy's lines near Ancreviller.

Monday Night.

Quiet reigns at many places on the battle front between the Aisne and the Marne.

There have been local engagements south of the Ourcq.

BRITISH REPORTS.

Monday.

Further ground was made by our troops yesterday south-east of Hebuterne, and a hostile bombing attack in this neighbourhood was repulsed. We captured a few prisoners.

In conjunction with French troops we carried out a successful minor enterprise last night south of Villers-Bretonneux, capturing a few prisoners and machine guns.

Our raiding parties entered the enemy's trenches at Neuville Vitasse, at Calonne-sur-la Lys, and north of Bailleul, and brought back prisoners.

Hostile artillery was active in the Locre sector.

8.10 p.m.

Except for some hostile artillery activity at different points, particularly south of Arras and east of Nieppe Forest, there is nothing to report from the British front.

Aviation.—On the 21st instant a very strong west wind and low clouds almost entirely prevented flying, except on a small part of the front. Machines in this sector dropped bombs on various targets, including a railway station, where a direct hit was obtained on an ammunition train. In combats five hostile machines were brought down. Four of our machines are missing.

After dark the sky cleared, and the wind dropped considerably, enabling our night bombing machines to carry out raids on the greater part of the front. Thirteen tons of bombs were dropped on the railway at Seclin, Menin, Lille, and Cambrai. One machine has not returned.

THE GERMAN PLIGHT.

FRENCH HAUL SOUTH OF THE MARNE.

1,000 PRISONERS AND 45 GUNS.

The Press Association says that the news up to three o'clock on Monday showed that east of Rheims, between the rivers on the whole front, the enemy, after a heavy bombardment, delivered very large attacks. At several points he was completely repulsed, except to the north of Perthes, where he gained a little ground between Suippes and Massiges. The French have regained their old front line between Rheims and the Marne. The heavy fighting of last night has not apparently resulted in any change in the situation on the Marne itself. The French, in spite of heavy opposition, have crossed in two places. By means, presumably, of the bridge at Dormans, they have advanced to and occupied Chassines, a hamlet situated about 1,000 yards from the River Marne, on the north side. To the west of this point they have thrown a bridge, and are occupying ground to the north of Passy. The French claim over 1,000 prisoners as a result of yesterday's operations between the Aisne and the Marne, and the British took 350 prisoners and four guns in the area around Mirgaux.

South of the Marne, the Germans in their retreat left behind 45 guns, of which six were French guns captured by them in their advance last week. This brings the total of German guns captured during the Allied counter-offensive up to, roughly, 450. It is estimated that the number of enemy divisions thrown into the battle is about 60, of which 54 have been actually identified—namely, 21 between the Aisne and the Marne, and 33 on the other battle fronts. The inference drawn from this fact is that the Crown Prince's reserves must be running rather low.

An unconfirmed report is to hand to the effect that the Germans are burning all the villages south of Fere-en-Tardenois. It may only be the blowing up of ammunition dumps; but if it is correct that the villages are being destroyed in the manner suggested, it may be taken to indicate that the enemy does not intend to stay in that part of the country. It is possible that the enemy himself may, at the moment, have no settled intentions—so much depends upon whether he can hold up the French or drive them back between the Aisne and the Marne. If he cannot do this he will probably shorten his line to a certain extent. One advantage of this operation from his point of view would be the freeing of a certain number of his divisions. But this would be neutralised by the fact that a number of Allied divisions would also be freed. It is too early yet to speak definitely on this point, and to-morrow's news may bring more trustworthy evidence of the enemy's plans.

FAVOURABLE OUTLOOK.

A FRENCH REVIEW.

Monday's Paris Intransigeant, reviewing the fighting, says:—According to the latest news from the front, a violent German counter-attack was launched against the southern wing of our front on the western side of the Soissons-Marne-Rheims salient, from Neuilly St. Front to Château Thierry. General Degoutte's army resisted bravely, repulsing the enemy and even gaining ground. On the rest of the battle front the fighting is also going in our favour, in particular between the Marne and Rheims, in the region of the Montagne de Reims, where, in spite of strong resistance, we are continuing to make progress. On the Marne itself, we have crossed the river at another point. We have again added to the total of prisoners taken. The enemy losses are enormous while our own are relatively slight. The situation, therefore, remains entirely favourable.

The Liberté expresses the opinion that the German counter-attacks on Sunday night were intended to cover the flow of divisions going up from the Marne towards the Vesle region. After saying that the enemy is evidently making every effort to gain time in order to get himself out of the tangle, the journal continues:—Our troops continue to cross the Marne in large force to the north-west of Château Thierry, and are following rapidly on the heels of the enemy. General Degoutte's army, which has already reached the Châtelet Forest, last night smashed an enemy thrust, and captured a thousand prisoners. In the northern sector, General Mangin's army is steadily tightening its grips around the Mont de Paris, commanding the approaches to Soissons. In the retreat from Château Thierry little was seen or heard of the enemy artillery, which had evidently been ordered to retreat betimes.

GERMAN AEROPLANE NEAR PARIS.

A German aeroplane, says a Paris telegram, tried yesterday morning to reach the Paris zone, but withdrew before the barrage fire.

THE SECOND VICTORY OF THE MARNE.

GERMANS TRYING TO HOLD THE WINGS.

VON BOEHM'S TIGHT POCKET.

Reuter's Expert Commentator, writing on Monday night, says—The second victory of the Marne is being accentuated day by day. Yesterday the Germans were driven from the southern bank of the Marne. To-day they had to abandon Château Thierry, to which they had penetrated as the result of the Chemin des Dames offensive. It was in the first hours of the morning of Sunday that the French troops of General Degoutte re-entered the place.

Enclosed on the south and west, the enemy was threatened with seeing his retreat cut off by the advance on the east of the Franco-American troops. He, therefore, hastily evacuated the town on Saturday night, retiring in a north-westerly direction towards Fere en Tardenois. Château Thierry is now released for a considerable distance on the north.

Indeed, pressed on one side on the west by the Franco-American troops of General Degoutte, between the Ourcq and the Marne, and attacked on the other side, on the east, by the detachment of General Mitry, which crossed the Marne between Fossoy and Chartèves, the Germans were thrown back on the line Bezu, Saint Germain, and Mont Saint Pere, seven kilometres beyond Château Thierry. The front, which before formed a right angle, with Château Thierry for its apex, now presents the form of an oblique line marked by the Mont Saint Pere, Bezu-Saint Germain and the Château Thierry-Soissons road as far as the Ourcq.

We have thus realised between the Ourcq and the Marne an important gain of territory, which reaches ten kilometres in depth at certain points.

Between the Ourcq and the Avre the enemy is offering desperate resistance. Nevertheless, we have pushed as far as the line Villemontoire-Parcy-Tigny and Billy-sur-Ourcq. The enemy is clinging to Soissons and Oulchy le Château, which constitute the two pivots of his defensive system in this region, but his stay there must be an uncomfortable one. Between the Marne and Rheims fighting is also of an extremely desperate character. At the foot of Montagne de Reims, French, British, and Italians, vieing with each other in bravery, unceasingly attacked the Germans, who had been considerably reinforced in this sector, and made fresh progress in the Bois du Roi, Bois de Courton, and Ardre Valley. The villages of Sainte Euphraise and Pouilly were re-occupied. Marfaux is being disputed with the British with furious obstinacy, and passes from hand to hand. Thus, while the enemy is yielding in the centre, he is making every effort to hold the two wings from the Ourcq at Soissons to the Marne at Rheims. General von Boehm is in a difficult and dangerous position in the pocket, which is being rapidly narrowed. With their communications threatened, the German troops are losing the presumptuous assurance with which the Crown Prince was inspired by the unexpected success of the Chemin des Dames. The irresistible power of General Foch's manœuvre is affirmed by the brilliant success of our armies. Never has our Command better deserved the confidence of the country than in these days of great hope.

TO THE FOURTH ARMY.

GENERAL GOURAUD'S ORDER.

General Gouraud addressed the following Order of the Day to the Fourth Army on the day following the check to the German offensive on the Champagne front:—

On July 15th you broke the effort of fifteen German divisions, strengthened by others, which had received orders to cross the Marne. The same evening you stopped them dead, just where we wished. You gained the battle. That was a hard blow for the enemy, but it was a good day for France. I rely on you to do the same each time the enemy dares to attack you, and with all my soldier's heart I thank you.

AMERICANS ADVANCING.

A Press Association message from the American front, received on Monday afternoon, says:—

The Franco-Americans beyond Château Thierry are everywhere advancing, and in addition have reached the Soissons-Château Thierry road.

The Americans crossed the Marne without resistance early on Sunday by boats and foot-bridges, and further crossings took place throughout the day, the guns being moved up to shell the retreating Germans. The heaviest fighting is now taking place south-west of Soissons and the Americans are advancing.

The Germans, before withdrawing, completely looted the town.

GERMAN ADMISSION OF FAILURE.

The Koelnische Volkszeitung says:—It is impossible to deny that the German offensive failed. The German people awaits anxiously, but patiently, the decisions demanded by the situation.

A FURTHER RETREAT.

GERMAN PREPARATIONS.

DESTROYING STORES AND AMMUNITION.

The Press Association's Special Correspondent with the French Army, writing on Monday at 1.30 p.m., says—North of the Marne the enemy is preparing for a further retreat. In the angle between the Marne and Ardre he is blowing up munition dumps and burning stores which he has no time to remove. In this heavily wooded, broken country, with no main roads and no railways that he can use, the enemy's position under our constant pressure is becoming more difficult every hour. To feed his front between Soissons and the Marne he has only one line of railway, a narrow gauge line which he built himself, from the Aisne, in the neighbourhood of Bourg, to Bazoches, where it joins the main line from Soissons to Rheims. The latter line may still be utilisable for a certain distance on both sides of Bazoches, but the junction there is constantly visited by our air-bombing squadron, and the Boche must have the [illegible] difficulty in using the limited railway facilities still left to him. It is possible that the enemy will fall back upon the line of the Vesle, which cuts the battlefield diagonally from Conde-sur-Aisne to Rheims, thus abandoning the Crise (flowing into the Aisne at Soissons) and the commanding plateau which separates the valleys of the Crise and the Vesle.

155 FRENCH GUNS RECOVERED.

Monday's Paris Liberté says:—During the rapid advance north of the Ourcq our infantry had the satisfaction of recovering 155 French guns which we abandoned on May 27th, and which the Germans had used against us since. The guns were turned against the enemy, the Germans not having time to destroy them.

The Temps prints a report that the German prisoners declared that they had received orders to retreat to a distance of sixteen kilometres from the Marne, as far as Fère-en-Tardenois.

In the same paper General Delacroix, commenting on the advance, says:—It is now certain that the Germans in their last attempt suffered extremely heavy losses. They have met with a defeat which cannot but increase in extent, and have been enfeebled materially and morally, instead of winning the decisive victory announced in advance, and looked forward to anxiously on the other side of the Rhine. Hard-fought battles have still to come, but the initiative of the operations has been transferred to another camp, and, what is of capital importance, General Foch has given it shape. He has intelligently seized the opportunity, and will not let it slip. Moreover, one must place on record the activity which has been noticeable for several weeks past on the British front, and especially the important and promising successes which our Allies have just achieved at Meteren and Rossignol Wood, between Hebuterne and Bucquoy.

M. Henry Bidon, in the Journal des Débats, says:—The enemy seems to have been in a rather tight corner this morning. The ground gained by him on May 27th in preparation for the great offensive does not give much opportunity for defensive action. Further hampered by our operations of the 18th, the enemy was obliged to take up the defensive on the arc of a small circle, with very little elbow room, and bad communications in his rear. Failure at any point on either of his flanks between Soissons and Oulchy or between Marfaux and Frigny would have had fatal consequences. The circumstances were such that the enemy was obliged either to fall back from the Marne, and thus lose his gains of May 27th, and the possibility of an ultimate offensive to hold on at all costs—and there could not be anything more disastrous than such an immobilised defence—or to seek salvation in a counter-move. But where and with what can this be done?

FRENCH PREMIER AT THE FRONT.

A Paris telegram states that M. Clemenceau spent Sunday on the battle front in the midst of the troops. Having left Paris on Saturday night, he went to visit and congratulate the Commander-in-Chief and the Generals of the Army which had just achieved the second victory of the Marne. He found among all admirable moral exalted by the victory. Learning that Château Thierry had just been retaken after a fierce struggle, M. Clemenceau wished to see for himself the state of this valiant town of Champagne, still hot from the battle. During this stirring visit M. Clemenceau resolutely traversed the streets of the town, strewn with ruins, débris, and corpses, which marked the passage of the barbarians and the intensity of the combat. But hearts were cheered in spite of everything by this visit of the head of the Government to a corner of old France reconquered from the Germans. M. Clemenceau returned to Paris in the evening.

THE DESTROYER MARNE.

A COINCIDENCE.

The Secretary of the Admiralty announces:—By a coincidence, on the same day as the German troops were being driven back again across the River Marne by the Allied Armies, a German submarine was sunk by His Majesty's destroyer Marne, Commander George B. Hertford, R.N. The name of the famous river appears to be one of good omen for the Allies.

ISAACS' LIBEL ACTION.

The hearing was resumed before Mr. Justice Darling and a special jury in London yesterday of the action for libel brought against Sir Charles Hobhouse by Mr. Godfrey Isaacs, managing director of the Marconi Company.

Sir Charles Hobhouse was again under cross-examination by Mr. Leslie Scott, K.C. Asked if he would swear that the first interview with plaintiff took place in September, 1914, Sir Charles said he was convinced that it could not have taken place at any other date than a period anterior to 14th September. In his memorandum of the interview between himself and plaintiff he referred to a private meeting between them in October, and he swore at the time he believed this to be true, but was now convinced it was September. He absolutely disagreed with the suggestion that the memorandum with regard to the wireless companies he took to Berlin was for the purpose of inducing competition with Marconi.

Counsel—Was not Telefunken your only hope of competition? I do not think so.

Continuing, he said he went to Berlin to see what was being done, and if they were doing much better it would be for the Post Office to inquire, having regard to the clause in the contract, with regard to three of the six proposed Imperial stations.

"You lunched with the Emperor, I think?" said His Lordship.

Witness—It was an invitation I could not avoid. (Laughter.)

Counsel—You wanted to see competition with Marconi as to the second three stations? Want is a large word. I should welcome it.

Generally speaking, said witness, the reason the Cabinet turned down the proposal for the wireless chain was because they did not think it necessary. At the time he was practically the only one against this decision.

The hearing was adjourned at the conclusion of defendant's cross-examination.

PERMITS FOR PUBLIC GATHERINGS.

At a meeting of the Council of the Gaelic Athletic Association in Dublin on Saturday it was unanimously decided that police permits should not be asked for the holding of meetings under the auspices of the Association.

The annual sports, under the Gaelic Athletic Association Rules, were announced to be held on Sunday at Cappagh, about seven miles from Dungannon. Early in the day a party of military arrived, and a number of police from the surrounding stations, under the command of District-Inspector Gillis, Dungannon, and occupied the village and sports grounds. A large gathering had assembled to enjoy the sports, but no attempt was made to hold them.

At Banagher a friendly match started on Sunday between a local team and a team from Clonfert, Co. Galway, at the sports field, about a mile outside the town. It would appear that a small force of police was present when the players lined out, and that the players were cautioned. When the game was about half-way through Mr. Knox, D.I., Birr, arrived with a number of police and soldiers, and dispersed the players and spectators. Afterwards the military and police came into Banagher, and dispersed the people who were on the streets.

There was considerable excitement in and around the villages of Sixmilecross and Beragh, Co. Tyrone, on Sunday afternoon, in consequence of the refusal of the promoters of a Gaelic festival, which had been announced to be held at Ballykeel, Sixmilecross, to apply for a permit, and a force of police and military were drafted in to prevent the meeting being held. The police stopped a large number of cyclists, inquired their business, and took their names. No attempt was made to hold the meeting at Ballykeel, and, after a wait of an hour or two, the crowd took their departure. About the same time information was received that an attempt was made to organise a meeting at Derroar, almost midway between Beragh and Sixmilecross, and District Inspector Conlin with a force of police and military soon arrived to find a considerable crowd. The Omagh men were quickly removed by the police. The crowd then broke up, and fled over the fields.

TYRONE HIBERNIANS AND PERMITS.

In connection with the proposed visit of Mr. John Dillon, M.P., to Tyrone on 15th August, the Dungannon Hibernians and Nationalists, at a meeting held on Sunday evening, decided to present him with an address at Dungannon railway station on his way to the demonstration. The meeting was addressed by Mr. John Skeffington, County President of the Tyrone Hibernians, who said that, as a result of the Government's being bluffed by Sir Edward Carson and their own dissensions, ascendancy had planted itself once more firmly in the country. As supporters of the policy of constitutional agitation in the country, the Hibernians claimed the right to hold such public meetings, demonstrations, and assemblies as they thought necessary for the good of their movement without either the protection or permission of the present Dublin Castle regime. The Orangemen had held their processions and demonstrations on 12th July, and in some of them had carried swords without permits. The Ancient Order of Hibernians claimed the same rights, privileges, and treatment, and would, therefore, hold their demonstrations on 15th August.

SPECIAL EXTRA.

GERMAN ARMY'S POSITION

BECOMING PERILOUS.

HINTS OF A GREAT RETIREMENT.

There is every indication, says the Paris Correspondent of the London Daily Express, that the Germans know that they must carry out a retreat on a considerable scale. Their artillery is hardly heard on the battle front, which seems to show that it is being transported to a new line in the rear. The enemy's situation is rapidly becoming perilous. He is giving ground on practically the whole front from Soissons to Rheims, and the utmost confusion reigns in his rear, as is proved by French aviators' observations.

Writing at 2 p.m. yesterday, Mr. Perris, Correspondent of the Daily Telegraph with the French Armies, says:—The night and early morning have passed without any important development, for on both sides a breathing space had become necessary. The obstinacy of the resistance to our attacks near Oulchy is explained by the need and difficulty of getting guns and other material back to the north. The direction of the retreat suggests that von Boehm may attempt to make a desperate stand on the Vesle.

CONGRATULATING THE ALLIED TROOPS.

A Paris telegram says—The Municipal Council of Paris and the Council General of the Seine have sent congratulations to the French and the Allied troops who have contributed to the successes of the last few days.

INDEPENDENT AIR FORCE.

The following report of the Independent Air Force was issued last night:—

On the night of July 21st-22nd many successful bomb attacks were carried out by our squadrons. Over a ton of bombs was dropped on the extensive railway sidings at Lunes, south-east of Mezieres. The Bodisons aniline and soda factory was again subjected to attack, and many good bursts were observed in the factory. At a factory south-east of Zwiebrucken a large explosion was caused. Bombs were dropped on three hostile aerodromes, and hangars were seen to be hit. Low-flying aeroplanes attacked and hit five trains, bringing them to a standstill. Searchlights and anti-aircraft guns were attacked with bombs and machine gun fire. All our machines returned. On the 22nd inst. an important powder factory at Roppvell was attacked. A direct hit was obtained on one of the big sheds, and as a result several of the sheds in its vicinity blew up. A fire broke out, which could be seen from a distance of sixty miles. All our machines returned safely.

LORD LEE'S SUCCESSOR.

Sir Charles Bathurst may succeed Lord Lee as Director of the Food Production Department, says the Parliamentary Correspondent of the Daily Chronicle.

COMING GENERAL ELECTION.

A General Election this year, probably in the first week in December, is now accepted as a certainty, writes the Parliamentary Correspondent of the Daily Chronicle. What perplexes everybody is the issue on which it is to be fought. The march of events may define one, but, as things are, there is no clear issue, at any rate as between the Liberals and Conservatives.

CHALLENGE TO PRESIDENT WILSON.

The New York Correspondent of the Daily News says:—The Democrats are to meet at Saratoga. Tammany, led by Senator Murphy, is anxious to nominate Mr. Hearst for the New York Governorship, whilst the Republicans are still halting between Mr. Whitman, the present Governor, and Mr. Roosevelt. If the latter stands, the country will regard his candidature as a direct challenge to Mr. Wilson.

GERMAN CONCERNS SEIZED IN NEW YORK.

A Reuter's New York telegram says:—Mr. Palmer, Custodian of Enemy Property, announces that he has taken over the large German-owned metal concerns in New York of Volgelstein and Co. and Beer, Sondheimer, and Co., with total assets of over fourteen million dollars.

ENEMY ALIENS.

The Government Committee, says the Daily Mail, will begin in a Committee Room at the House of Commons on Friday its inquiry into the cases of enemy aliens exempted from internment in England, Wales, and Ireland. Scottish cases will be considered separately. This Committee now consists of Mr. Justice Sankey (Chairman), Mr. Justice Younger, Lord Lambourne, Sir John Butcher, Sir Donald MacLean, M.P.; Mr. J. J. Mooney, M.P.; Mr. W. J. H. Brodrick (Secretary).

AEROPLANE CRASH IN A STREET.

An aeroplane crashed on the tramway lines in the main thoroughfare of Bournemouth yesterday evening, says the London Daily Express. The pilot was killed, and the observer was injured.

GERMANS IN ESTHONIA.

BREST TREATY IGNORED.

News transmitted through the wireless stations of the Russian Government states:—

A protest against the action of the German authorities in Esthonia has been signed by twelve Petrograd organisations and four Moscow and eighteen provincial organisations. It says—The Germans are not abiding by the Brest Treaty. They ignore the Esthonian temporary Government, have abolished all legally elected local bodies, prevent the assembling of the Diet, German military courts have replaced the local courts of justice, and the Germans have also undertaken the political organisation of the Esthonian State. It is known also that the German Government has assigned large sums for the purpose of the systematic colonisation of the Baltic regions.

NEW UKRAINIAN ARMY.

A Reuter's Amsterdam message says:—A Kieff telegram says—The first step has been taken towards the formation of a Ukrainian Army, the Hetman of the Ukraine having issued a decree ordering the raising of 5,000 recruits on the basis of a general conscription from among those born in 1899. Volunteers between the ages of 18 and 25 will also be enlisted.

THE MURMAN COAST.

In the House of Commons yesterday, Mr. King asked the Foreign Secretary whether, in view of the present military operations on the Murman Coast, Russia can be now deemed to have again joined the Allies against the Central Powers.

Mr. Balfour—There is no change in the position.

IRISH QUESTIONS.

PRUSSIA STREET MARKET

Mr. Shortt, replying to Mr. Field, said that swine were sold in a section of the Cattle Market, Prussia street, Dublin. Two weighing machines had been provided at the market, one of which was situated near the section of the market at which swine were sold, and was available for the weighing of pigs. Inquiry would be made as to whether additional weighing facilities should be made available.

HOUSING FACILITIES IN IRELAND

Mr. Shortt, in reply to Mr. Field, who asked whether arrangements were being made to ensure that Ireland should receive the same financial assistance and provision of materials for housing as would be given in Great Britain, said that it was intended that Ireland should participate in any measure submitted to Parliament for the improvement of housing conditions. The requirements for building materials in Ireland were dealt with by the Department concerned in the same way as in Great Britain.

Sir E. Carson asked was there any Committee considering this question in Ireland. It was a pressing matter.

Mr. Shortt—No; not in Ireland.

THE TRADE BOARDS BILL

The Trade Boards Bill passed through the Report stage in the House of Commons yesterday. The Speaker ruled as outside the scope of the bill a proposed clause, providing that if a Special Order were made applying the Act to agriculture, it should provide that the powers conferred by the Act shall be exercised by the Board of Agriculture. The Speaker pointed out that the House had never treated agriculture as a trade. It was an industry with a separate code of legislation. The motion for the third reading was agreed to.

IRELAND'S COAL SUPPLY.

HOW TO CONSERVE IT.

STATEMENT BY THE CONTROLLER.

Mr. H. G. Burgess, Coal Controller and Director of Cross-Channel Shipping, was yesterday afternoon the guest of the Rotary Club at luncheon in the Central Hotel, Dublin. He made an important statement to the members on the coal question in Ireland.

Mr. J. L. Stewart, President, presided. There was a large attendance of members.

After luncheon, the President, having welcomed the Club's guest, whom he described as absolute autocrat in a thing that affected everyone, assured Mr. Burgess that he would find the Rotary Club sympathetic to all control which was for the good of the people. He said it was due to Mr. Burgess's organisation that they had not felt the pinch of the want of coal, and he was quite sure that Mr. Burgess would bring them safely through the difficulty. (Applause.)

Mr. Burgess, who was warmly received, said—I have been asked to say a few words on the coal situation in Ireland, but before doing so I would like to take the opportunity to thank the members of the Rotary Club for inviting me here to-day and for your hospitality. I am also glad of the opportunity to say something in respect to the very critical position of the coal question—a question of paramount importance at the present time, and urgently demanding the attention of everyone in Ireland. So that the actual realities may be clearly understood, I will now give you the tonnage of coal imported into Ireland since the year 1912: 1912, 4,752,923 tons; 1913, 4,726,763 tons; 1914, 4,470,833 tons; 1915, 4,587,622 tons; 1916, 4,509,383 tons; 1917, 4,246,920 tons. It will be observed that, notwithstanding all the difficulties of shipping and everything else, the supplies up to the end of the year 1917 were very well maintained, but I regret to say that from the beginning of this year things have not been so good, and for the past couple of months the imports have fallen away very considerably—approximately 35 per cent. to some ports, and to other ports even more.

SUB-COMMITTEES APPOINTED.

With the view of providing for the anticipated difficulties in the best possible way, a meeting of the principal people connected with the coal business in Ireland was held in Dublin a few months ago, and, after discussing the question fully, three representative sub-committees were appointed to represent the following areas:—Northern Area—All north of a line drawn from Dundalk to Westport. Midland Area—Between lines drawn from Dundalk to Westport and Gorey to Limerick. Southern Area—All south of the line drawn from Gorey to Limerick.

It was laid down that the duties of these committees were to be to—

1. Regulate the import of coal to the ports best serving their own area, so as to avoid wastage in railway haulage, and leave railway wagons available for other important services. 2. Regulate the distribution of the available coal in the most beneficial way, taking particular care that the requirements of Government works, public utility undertakings, and other essential industries, as well as the wants of the poor, were specially looked after. 3. To arrange for consumers to draw their supplies from the same source and through the same channels as heretofore, so that unscrupulous people might be prevented from upsetting the regulations for profiteering purposes. 4. To guard against any class of consumer hoarding, to the disadvantage of works, or the poor.

In addition a special committee, comprised of three Dublin coal merchants and three "bellmen," with the Lord Mayor of Dublin as chairman, was appointed to deal with the question of coal supplies for the poor of Dublin. The result of these arrangements was that several recommendations for economy were made. Amongst the more important were those from the Belfast Corporation and the Committee of the Dublin Electricity Supply (approved by the Dublin Corporation), and which were as follows:—Dublin Electricity Supply Committee:—

Owing to the Government restrictions on the delivery of coal, the Electricity Supply Committee regret to have to give notice that the supply to consumers must be substantially reduced during the two coming winter quarters, i.e., for approximately six months from the date of the meter readings commencing in September.

During each of the two quarters mentioned, only two-thirds of the units used during last December or March quarter can be supplied. In any case, where more than the allotted quantity of two-thirds is used, the supply will be cut off for the following three months, under the sanction of the Board of Trade.

The Committee will endeavour to arrange for a full supply to those power consumers who can give satisfactory guarantees that they will not use any current (for power purposes) between the hours of 4 p.m. and 6 p.m. during the months of November and February, and between the hours of 3.30 p.m. and 6 p.m. during the months of December and January next. Consumers should make immediate application if they desire to avail of this arrangement.

Belfast Corporation:—

1. That in private houses kitchen fires should not be kept going all day. 2. That no half lights should be used in houses. 3. That all lighting should be greatly reduced. 4. That no artificial light should be allowed to be used in shops after windows during the operation of the daylight saving regulations. 5. That shop windows should not be lighted. 6. That no lights should be used for advertisement purposes. 7. That regulations should be put in force limiting the internal lighting of shops or business premises. 8. That institutions, hospitals, etc., should be asked to aim at saving both coal and light to the extent of 25 per cent., or more, if that is found possible. 9. That the various denominations be asked to arrange for the holding of their Services during the hours of daylight. 10. That places of entertainment should be closed at or before 10 p.m., unless under special license. 11. That in clubs and hotels lighting should be reduced, and that the use of light be prohibited in rooms not adequately occupied. 12. That tramway companies should be required to revise their services so as to get the maximum saving in the consumption of coal.

These recommendations, with others, were advertised through the Press, and by special posters and pamphlets, which were exhibited throughout the country—viz.:—At all railway stations, police stations, post offices, and public hoardings. Moreover, the special attention of all public bodies such as corporations, town commissioners, county councils, urban district councils, poor law guardians, etc., gas and electric companies, was drawn to the seriousness of the matter. In addition to this foregoing, the Controller of Coal Mines, through his technical department, has appointed expert engineers to at once make a thorough examination of the machinery and arrangements at each factory and works throughout the country with the view of stopping wastage in coal consumption.

SOURCES OF WASTAGE

I am glad to be able to say that the work already done has had in many instances good results, but a great deal still remains to be done. I have proof that there is yet great wastage, viz.: In street, shop, and public lighting, heating, and power in heating and lighting of institutions, hotels, clubs, theatres, cinemas, etc., unnecessary tramway and electrical services, in gas and electrical works. I appreciate that many of the undertakings mentioned are worked by private capital or companies, and efforts are naturally being made to provide a return on the capital invested; still, to my mind, it will be a more sound policy to economise whilst there is time, rather than later on be compelled to economise for the actual want of coal. Another great wastage is in domestic heating and lighting. This is apparent everywhere, and clear proof exists that householders have been allowed by some coal merchants to hoard coal to the great disadvantage of works, factories, etc. In deed, some works were compelled to temporarily suspend operations; however, I can only repeat that householders may rest satisfied that their hoardings will be requisitioned as required, and if any coal merchant continues to allow such a practice it will be a serious matter for him.

Surgeon Probationer J. Lord-Flood.—We regret to announce the death in action at sea on July 16th of Surgeon Probationer James J. A. Lord-Flood. Mr. Lord-Flood, who was educated at Belvedere College, Dublin, and the Royal College of Surgeons, Ireland, was the eldest son of Mr. and Mrs. J. R. Lord, 27 Charleville road, North Circular road, Dublin. He was a well-known figure in swimming and tennis circles in the city.

ATTEMPTED SHIPMENT OF IMMATURE CATTLE.

HEAVY PENALTIES IMPOSED.

Convicted at Londonderry Petty Sessions yesterday of attempting to ship immature cattle, Patrick and Robert Gormley and Benjamin Doherty, cattle dealers, of Londonderry, were each fined £100; James M'Laughlin, buyer, £5, and several assistants of defendants 10s. and £1 costs. Evidence was given that young heifers, which could not legally be shipped, were found in a yard, branded in imitation of the brand used on cattle passed for shipment, and that these were subsequently found on board a steamer with other cattle properly branded.

Dr. Todd undertook to return the cattle, which were automatically forfeited, on the payment of the costs of maintenance since seizure.

Mr. Babington, K.C., appeared for the defendants.

THE CORK STEAM PACKET COMPANY.

Last evening, in the City Hall, Cork, a public meeting was held for the consideration of the proposal made for the acquisition of the share capital of the City of Cork Steam Packet Company, and the steps to be taken with the object of preserving the interests of the trading community in view of the proposal. The Lord Mayor presided. A letter was read from Mr. Eben Pike, chairman of the company, in the course of which he stated that the important point in connection with the proposal lay in the fact that for a very long time they could not possibly, standing alone, redeem the position created by the destruction of their fleet, while the influence and shipping resources of the projected alliance, can, he believed, redeem the position as quickly as it was possible to do. He was satisfied that the proposal was calculated to secure substantial benefits for the trading community.

On the proposition of Major O'Connor, seconded by Mr. Coffey, Cattle Trade Association, a resolution was adopted urging that it be one of the conditions of sale that a service of steamers shall in future be maintained equal to that provided by the Steam Packet Company in pre-war times, and calling on the Harbour Commissioners to render impossible a monopoly of the cross-Channel carrying trade. A deputation, including the Lord Mayor, was appointed to see the directors of the Packet Company to place the views of the meeting before them.

FUNERAL OF LATE MR. JOHN GORE.

Yesterday morning the remains of the late John Gore were interred in Glasnevin Cemetery. There was a large attendance of his friends and members of the various societies with which he had been connected and representatives of all classes of the citizens. The following were the chief mourners:—Christopher M. Grimes and Peter Reynolds (nephews-in-law), Jack Gore (grand nephew). The clergy present included:—Rev. Fathers—Farrell, C.C., Donnybrook; Bowden, Adm., John O'Reilly, C.C., Pro-Cathedral; P. Hayden, C.C., J. Meighan, C.C., Clontarf; Thornton, Sylvester, O.S.F., and Aloysius, Church street; Cullen, S.J.; Clarke, O.M.I.; Corbett, O.S.C.; E. W. Mooney, O.S.A.; Thomas O'Ryan, C.C., Hon. Sec., I.A.P.I.; Canon Downing. The general attendance included—Messrs. Laurence O'Neill, Lord Mayor; John Foley, Lord Mayor's Secretary; P. J. O'Neill, Chairman, Co. Council; Dudley White, K.C.; Henry G. Kilbey, T. J. O'Connor, J.P.; Alderman Corrigan, Sir P. Shortall, M. A. Corrigan, C. P. O'Neill, Chairman Pembroke Council; Wm. McGrath, K.C.; J. R. Dixon, J. L. ## IRELAND'S COAL SUPPLY.

question of imported coal, you, no doubt, will be interested to hear something about the present position of the Irish coal mines. The three principal mines now working are: Arigna, Wolfhill, and Castlecomer, and I will deal with these separately. Arigna.—The Arigna Mining Company are at present working on the east side of the hill 3 adits, and a private owner 1 adit, producing about 85 tons per day—arrangements have just been completed by the Government to at once begin and push on with all speed the construction of about 3½ miles of railway from Arigna Station, along the Arigna Valley, getting as close as possible to the coal fields. The Mining Company and the private owner will, at their own expense, construct ropeways, etc., to connect the adits with the railway, and when all these works are complete—which will not be very long—350 tons per day can be turned out; moreover, the owners have other extensive royalties, and expect to open up other adits—with proportionate increase in the output. The estimated deposit is 20,000,000 to 30,000,000 tons.

Wolfhill.—Mr. Parkinson is at present working one pit—viz., Gracefield—and turning out 80 tons per day. The railway built by the Government from Athy Station—a distance of about 6½ miles—has just been completed, and all that now remains is to put down a short siding to Gracefield pit, and another to Modubeigh pit, when it is expected the output will be 500 tons per day, increasing to 1,000 tons. Moreover, other pits in the district can be opened up. The two sidings referred to will be constructed by the Government, and Mr. Parkinson will pay an interest on the outlay. Moreover, Mr. Parkinson will, at his own expense, construct the necessary ropeways to connect the pits with the sidings. The estimated deposit is 60,000,000 tons.

Castlecomer.—The present output here is 250 tons per day. The Government have actually begun the construction of a railway from a point on the Great Southern and Western Railway near Kilkenny to Castlecomer, a distance of about nine miles. One hundred men are at present employed building the line, and it is expected that from 500 to 600 men will be employed in two or three weeks' time. When this railway is complete Captain Wandesforde expects to increase his output to 200,000 tons per annum. He will, at his own expense, construct a very elaborate system of ropeways to connect his three pits now working, and other pits to be opened up, with the railway. The estimated deposit is 80,000,000 tons.

WORK IN SMALLER MINES.

There are other smaller mines working at present, such as the Portrush and Ballycastle. Coal is known to exist at other places—viz., Dungannon, Coalisland, County Tipperary, County Cork, etc.—which is not being worked, but of these it is pretty certain that the deposits at Dungannon and Coalisland are the most extensive, and it is hoped that under existing conditions—conditions likely to continue for a long time—that private enterprise will come forward and work, particularly as there are excellent railway and canal facilities. As the quality of coal at present being got is generally anthracite, it is very important that works and other consumers of coal should provide themselves with suitable furnaces, ranges, and grate bars. It will be interesting to you to hear that recently, at the instigation of the Chief Secretary and the Controller of Coal Mines, a mining expert, accompanied by Mr. Lyburn, mining representative of the Board of Agriculture, made an examination of all the Irish coal mines, and a report is in course of preparation. I am sure you will also be pleased to hear that Mr. Shortt, the Chief Secretary, within the past couple of weeks, thoroughly inspected the mines at Arigna, Dungannon, Coalisland, Wolfhill, and Castlecomer, with the result that things have been quickly pushed on. Mr. Shortt also visited Kynochs, Arklow, and other works, and is actively interesting himself in the development of all sorts of Irish industries.

APPEAL FOR ECONOMY.

I have now given an outline of the position with respect to coal matters in Ireland, and shown the extreme urgency in the national interest of the greatest possible economy in the consumption of coal, and I appeal to the members of the Rotary Club, to all authorities, and the general public to help to bring about the desired results. I am convinced that even with the smaller quantity of coal coming into Ireland now and in the future, we will with care be able to carry on; but if there is not strict economy we will have to face the unpleasant spectacle of works closing, unemployment, and the poor, and even the well off, without fires or light. To avoid these things waste under all heads must stop. Profiteering must stop; public authorities and coal merchants have power under the Defence of the Realm Regulations to fix prices everywhere. In addition to economy, the use of substitutes, such as turf and timber, will be necessary, and I am glad to know that much more turf has been cut, and I hope that the owners will in due course dispose of it at a reasonable price. Another means of saving coal is to take advantage of water-power wherever possible. (Applause.)

In conclusion, Mr. Burgess said it would only be by everybody putting his shoulder to it that the best could be got out of their position, and they would have to have no nonsense about it. He knew that it had been said he was alarming people unnecessarily. He was only sorry that his advice had not been taken seriously months ago. If it had been taken they would have very much more coal in Dublin to-day. (Applause.)

MERCHANTS' QUESTIONS.

Several questions were put to Mr. Burgess.

Mr. Charles Jacob asked what was the proportion of coal required for manufacturing purposes as compared with domestic use.

Mr. S. W. Maddock, D.L., wanted to know if anything had been done to increase the production of turf. Another gentleman desired to know whether anything had been done to facilitate the gas companies to produce better gas.

Mr. White referred to the Corporation electricity power order, and said it was very serious for houses using motors. It was quite impossible to stop motors for part of the day, and if the electric power was cut off it would be absolutely impossible to carry on these businesses.

MR. EASON'S CRITICISM.

Mr. Eason expressed the fear that some people who had been economical of coal in the past year might find themselves far worse off than those who had been extravagant. It seemed to him that something should be done to ration coal in proportion to household requirements. To base anyone's supply on their last winter's consumption would not, he thought, work out equitably. Most of the rationing schemes, except the Food Control schemes, had the serious fault that the person who was extravagant would come off best. (Hear, hear.)

Mr. Ireton Jones asked if the theatres and places of pleasure could not be compelled to close at 9 o'clock instead of 10 o'clock. What London could tolerate, Dublin ought to put up with. Mr. R. H. H. Baird asked if Arigna coal could be burnt without the assistance of English coal.

MR. BURGESS'S REPLY.

Mr. Burgess, answering the different questions, said that the best estimates showed that the consumption of coal for manufacturing purposes and for domestic use was about equal. As to the increase in the supply of turf, he thought he was safe in saying that the supply of turf had been increased a hundred per cent. More might have been available if the Land Commission, which had large turf areas, could have done anything, but they were so tied up by Acts of Parliament that they could do nothing. As regards the question asked about the price, he was quite sure that profiteering would not be allowed. He did not know that anything had been done to prevent the gas companies from not giving the quality of gas that they ought to give. He was not aware that the quality of gas was worse. The only thing was that the gas companies might have been called upon to produce a certain gas which would take away from the lighting quality. Nothing had been done about rationing gas. If people would only join with the coal merchants and gas companies, and make their own arrangements so that they could conduct their businesses in their own way, it would be much better for them than having put up against them hard and fast rationing arrangements. Of course, if that was not done rationing would have to be imposed. As regards the cutting off of electric power for motors he was quite sure that the Corporation would not cut off power where it was really necessary. He was quite sure that the Electric Lighting Committee would provide absolutely necessary power. As to the people who had economised in coal he did not accept all he heard. His experience in Ireland was that no one would do anything unless they were compelled to do it. Almost all Irish coal, he said, was anthracite coal. It was hard to light, but once it was alight it kept burning, and burned for a long time. It was very important that Irish people should use Irish coal. What it wanted was wider bars to the grates so as to let in more air.

EARLIER PERFORMANCES IN THEATRES.

He thoroughly agreed that there was no reason why theatres, cinemas, and other such places should not begin their performances earlier and close earlier. Such an arrangement would save power, light, and coal; it would save many things, including coal on the tramway services, where a great deal was being used. (Applause.)

The President thanked Mr. Burgess, and said that the Rotary Club entered into the spirit of his difficulties, and appreciated his aim to enable business men to control their own businesses.

The proceedings concluded.

A Berlin telegram to Amsterdam states that Count von Hertling, who is staying at the Main Headquarters, is in the doctor's hands. He caught cold on his return from several days' travelling on official business, but is already on the road to recovery.

IRISH SOCIETY OF ARTS EXAM.
At the June, 1918, exam. Students of SKERRY'S SCHOOL, 10 Harcourt st., Dublin, were awarded 48 Certificates—i.e., 39 in Typewriting, 8 in Book-keeping, and 1 in Shorthand.—(Advt.)

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR.

IRISH RECRUITING.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE IRISH TIMES.

SIR,—Among many to whom I have spoken, and whose opinions I value, there is a common feeling that recruiting speeches to Chambers of Commerce and local councils—even to those that are sympathetic—will have only poor results, unless the individual members can be induced to make the subject an urgent and imperative cause, to be forwarded by them day by day as best they can.

Academic discourses or carefully reasoned appeals to the logical faculties are too often received with a bored respect, and quickly fade from mind. There is little reason or logic in Sinn Fein, but a good deal of appeal to popular imagination and emotion—hence largely its success. The realities of the war problem in relation to Ireland everyone understands already. To bring its romance and emotional side more prominently into notice might have some practical effect, even without the prime dynamic and necessary influence—a word of encouragement for voluntarily recruiting from the heads of the Churches, without distinction of creed. And why should not the Recruiting Council make a direct appeal to them? In past recruiting efforts in Ireland I have taken a small part, and am more than ever desirous of seeing Ireland, while yet there is time, doing her full share of war service. That being so, I would be most unwilling to embarrass the new Council now engaged in the work. Occasionally, however, its tactics invite, and have already provoked, criticism.

Might I suggest one thing, as most pressing and essential—namely, that the ten recruiting areas should be specified and their several populations given, together with the number of men required from each area? The efforts of the Recruiting Council are being watched with sympathetic interest, but time is passing.—Yours, etc.,

S. W. MADDOCK.

AGRICULTURAL WAGES.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE IRISH TIMES.

SIR,—In your issue of Friday last Mr. Prothero is reported as having said in the House of Commons that "the wages for agricultural labourers in England were mostly in the region of 40s. per week." The report in The Times says: "The wages were mainly in the region of about 30s. a week. Whether that could continue to be paid depended largely on the prices." The latter figure is obviously the correct one.—Yours, etc.,

THE INFLUENZA EPIDEMIC.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE IRISH TIMES.

SIR,—At the request of Sir Charles Cameron and the medical faculty, we, managers of schools, closed our schools lest the epidemic of influenza should spread through the children. The Sunday schools and Children's Services have also been closed, and still the epidemic prevails. Last night, coming home from church, one could not help wondering why the queues of people waiting to get into the various picture houses were permitted. Surely these picture houses might reasonably be closed during this terrible epidemic of influenza.—Yours, etc.,

A CHURCH IN CHINA.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE IRISH TIMES.

SIR,—Not long ago we were horrified to learn that, at the beginning of the war, whole battalions of Russian soldiers were sent into battle without weapons. Shall we not be much to blame if we send our missionaries to the "front" unprovided with what is necessary for the contest? Such is the condition of things now at Fuan. It is the most important city in the district under the charge of the Dublin University Fuh-Kien Mission. A very promising work is going on there, but it is being sadly hindered for want of a church. There is only an utterly unsuitable room, so unfitted in every way that enquirers, on coming to the Services, are repelled and refuse to come again to such a place. It is heartbreaking to see those who are beginning to be interested in the Christian message driven away, and the devoted labours of our missionaries apparently brought to nothing for want of a proper building.

Is it not our part to supply the need? A suitable church will cost about £600. The D.U.F.M. Committee have promised £100. They cannot give more, as it has been necessary to send £600 to meet an urgent need at Trinity College, Foo-Chow. The Chinese Christians are giving what they can, and the missionaries of the diocese are contributing from their very small means. We appeal to all interested in missions to assist this mission of the Irish Church by helping to make up the sum required. Subscriptions, marked "Fuan Church," may be sent to the Rev. E. J. Young, B.D., 50 North Circular road, Dublin.—Yours, etc.,

CORK SUMMER ASSIZES.

MR. JUSTICE DODD AND TERRORISM.

Yesterday Mr. Justice Dodd, who was accompanied by Mr. W. F. O'Connor, City High Sheriff, opened the Commission of Assize for the City of Cork.

His Lordship, in the course of his address to the Grand Jury, of which Mr. Michael Egan, J.P., was foreman, said that he had only one duty to discharge, and that was, to keep the peace and make everyone else keep the peace. Armed resistance to the law must be put down with a strong hand and an outstretched arm, and there his functions ceased. Having referred to city business, which possessed no unusual features, he said that they were asked to try 18 cases from counties other than their own, on the ground that in their city the fairest trial could be had of any city in Ireland. He could not forget, and he hoped he never would forget, the great kindness and sympathy of the City of Cork to himself individually when he first came there after the outbreak of the war. On the second occasion he had been carried away by the vista of prosperity opening before them. That had been to some extent changed; the hope of prosperity had been only postponed, but the lawlessness of the country had checked their order and baffled their prosperity. So, in the interest of peace and prosperity in Cork, and throughout this land, which they all loved, in the interests of the great countries with which they were associated against the menace of war abroad, they must be free from the menace of armed force at home. He thought there was a ray of hope, and had come to think that the great majority of them sympathised with the victories their armies were winning in the foreign field. A dark cloud hung over their land when he was with them before, and this cloud, which had come in such a short time, might be dispelled as quickly. He would now ask their attention to the other cases for trial. The first was the case against David Kent, from County Cork, who was charged with feloniously and wilfully inciting persons to murder certain other persons, to wit, soldiers of the Army of our lord the King. As far as he could gather, the evidence consisted in the police notes of a public speech made by the accused. His idea of incitement to murder must be an incitement to murder a named person with a real intent which could be carried out. The general mention of killing soldiers might be evidence of another kind to justify military action under the Defence of the Realm Act to prevent him from acting similarly again, but that was for them to find. He proposed to take up next day (Tuesday) the case of Patrick O'Brien, John O'Brien, and William O'Brien for murder. After that he would take up the case of murder against Charles Quain, County Limerick. There was another most serious case against William Ryan, Michael Hanley, and Thomas O'Loughlin, of conspiracy to defeat the course of duty by seeking, by threats and menaces, and the offer of £100, to deter an injured person from seeking the protection of the law. That ended the first chapter. He had thirteen cases more from Kerry, Clare, and King's County. He was not going to discharge the Grand Jury, but would ask them to come back on Tuesday week and hear the outlying cases. It was the duty of everyone in the interest of his own land to put an end to these attempts to prevent him from doing justice, and put down with a strong hand the attempts to defeat the ends of justice in this country. He looked upon all this terrorism as a thing that they could not help people suffering from, but when wrong-doers came in and promised to obey the law they would receive from the jurors and himself merciful treatment.

The Grand Jury found no bill in the case in which David Rice Kent was charged with inciting people to murder soldiers, and he was discharged.

WAR NOTICES AND APPEALS.

SOLDIERS' AND SAILORS' REFRESHMENT BUFFETS.

The returns for last week for the Dublin Buffets were 18,961 men. Since the buffets were opened, 1,452,505 men have been given free refreshments. The following gifts have been received:—Mrs. T. Aston, Miss O'Neill, Mrs. Anderson, Mrs. Gordon, Mrs. Bailey, Miss Ross, Mr. Joseph, Mrs. Calwell, Miss Chapman, Mrs. Cole Greville, "A Friend," Mrs. Murray, Mrs. Barry, Mrs. Evans, Miss Parsons, Mrs. McPhail, sandwich meat; Mrs. Robinson, Mrs. Jacob, Mrs. Shanahan, Mrs. Tittle, Miss Woods, Mrs. Holmes, Miss Knaggs, Miss Aylward, lettuce and cucumber; Major Cusack, buns; Miss O'Neill, jam; Mr. Kehoe, Miss Bridge, cheese; Mrs. Odium, knives; Mr. Aylward, cups; Mrs. Stewart, milk and butter; Mr. Ashley, table; Miss Wade, cigarettes; "A Soldier's Friend," golden syrup and sardines; Miss Wade, eggs.

HUGH D. PACK BERESFORD.

VEGETABLE PRODUCTS COMMITTEE (IRISH BRANCH),

5 Molesworth Street, Dublin.

The Hon. Secretaries appeal for funds to carry on the work of supplying fresh fruit and vegetables to our sailors of the Grand Fleet and to Irish Naval Bases. Cheques should be made payable to Mr. D. L. Ramsay, Hon. Treasurer, and all particulars as to gifts of produce will be gladly furnished by the Hon. Secretaries.

According to the National Zeitung Dr. Helfferich is mentioned amongst the candidates for the German Embassy at Moscow.

PUBLIC AMUSEMENTS.

GAIETY THEATRE.

A play entitled "Five Nights," "a love problem of all ages," was performed at the Gaiety Theatre last evening by Messrs. F. W. Warden and K. F. Hooper's Co. The programme states that the play is prepared for the stage by its author, Victoria Cross, from her world-famous novel, but it is obvious that there have been many changes made in the dramatic representation of the story. The love story of an artist looking for his ideal amongst many models is not a tale which would appeal to the ordinary play-goer, but the playwright weaves a neat story, in which the love current runs strongly, so as to disarm criticism by the manner in which she unfolds her tale. In its development there is much suggestiveness, and frequently one wonders why the author has allowed the play to take dramatic form. The dialogue is poor, the construction lacks motion, and the characters are thinly drawn, so that the general result is unconvincing. The plot, which deals with the emotions of an artist, Trevor—whose pictures are always unfinished in his anxiety to achieve the ideal—is a very poor peg upon which to hang the dramatic theme. But what is lacking in dramatic merit is amply compensated by the excellence of the acting. Philip Anthony, as Trevor, gives an excellent personation as an infatuated artist, while Miss Phyllis Joyce, as his cousin Viola, wins instant sympathy. Morely, Anthony's bachelor friend, is capably represented by Thomas Barry, whilst other artists who distinguished themselves are A. H. Leamy, T. Ryley, H. Denman, and the Misses Muriel Langney, Sylvia Badsano, Betty Charna, and Lena Anson. The play was effectively staged, while the music played by the orchestra, under the direction of Mr. W. S. Nabarro, greatly enhanced the merit of the performance.

THEATRE ROYAL HIPPODROME.

There was a typical variety programme at the Theatre Royal Hippodrome last night, and, although there was no outstanding turn, the general average of merit was up to the usual Royal standard. Many of the artists had been in Dublin on previous occasions, and they received a cordial welcome on returning. One of these turns was that given by Alf. Leonard, who, with his fiddle, and accompanied by Yvette Valaire, danseuse, put on a show that was especially pleasing. Alf's playing of national airs was a charming performance, and "brought down the house"; while Mdlle. Valaire's dancing was full of graceful movement and marked by mature timing and efficiency. George French, another old favourite singing character comedian, also enjoyed much popularity; while Barrett and Knowles, otherwise described as "the green lizard and his friend," provoked roars of laughter. The "green lizard" is certainly a very funny fellow. Eddy Martyn reappeared in his clever dance impersonations, and the Gerbola Trio of Italian acrobats and tumblers gave a smart performance. Amongst the new-comers the most prominent was Lottie Collins, daughter of the well-known music-hall artist of the same name, and now deceased. She sang several songs in an acceptable manner, and got on very well with her audience. The Charley Meteor Trio appeared in a clever aerial act, the male member of the trio being responsible for some very amusing tricks. Christy and Willis arrived on the stage in an extraordinary automobile, and have all sorts of novel contrivances with which to astonish and amuse the people. A juvenile turn was given by the Two Cures, a pair of youngsters, who are full of the "performing spirit."

QUEEN'S THEATRE.

"The Shaughraun" was produced at the Queen's Theatre last night with an all-Dublin cast. The play is old, but in these hands it is new. The only difficulty some of the players have is with the English accent, while brogues of various sorts obtrude themselves fluently and naturally. That is a great deal to the good in the presentation of an Irish play. Mr. M. E. O'Neill made a convincing Harvey Duff, and Mr. T. J. Powell was natural and convincing as Father Dolan. Mr. Michael Gibson, who played the part of Con, gave a most effective interpretation of the part. Miss Phil Cooper, as Moya, was an ordinary Irish girl, and to be praised for it. Without a doubt, "The Shaughraun" was thoroughly enjoyed by the audience. Taking the company all round, they well deserved the success that attended their efforts.

EMPIRE THEATRE.

At the Empire Theatre this week the programme is both varied and attractive. It was received last night by a crowded audience with repeated applause. Madge Clifton, who has frequently appeared in Dublin, repeated her success in some of her old songs, and announced some new ones for the rest of the week. Mary Connolly, the "Dublin street singer," has gained confidence, and sings with expression and effect. The O'Connor-Cox Trio sang sentimental selections, and were recalled, an indication of appreciation which they deserved. An amusing sketch, entitled "A Sure Cure," in which Freffel O'Rourke, May Craig, and other artists appeared, was the cause of much merriment. The entertainment is highly amusing throughout.

TIVOLI THEATRE.

The usual variety programme was provided at the Tivoli Theatre to crowded houses. The principal performer was the well-known De Marrel, who is a trick master with the violin. His playing of ragtime popular airs was received with much popularity. Lily Currie, a clever vocalist, was much liked, and The Beilinis presented a novel pot-pourri act. Harry Atkinson, an Australian, sang and acted in an entertaining manner, and Allan M'Keivin, character vocalist, gave several clever studies. Malvina Dunreath, the Golliwog Girl, was a novel feature of the entertainment, and W. H. Brand, an eccentric baritone, and Walmer and Worsey at the piano, added much to the enjoyment of the audience.

Carlton Cinema.—Mary Pickford, in "Rebecca of Sunnybrook Farm," being a six-part Art Craft production, adapted from the famous novel by Kate Douglas Wiggins, is the chief attraction in a strong programme at the Carlton Cinema, 52 Upper Sackville street. The film is being exhibited for the first time in Dublin, and is supported by "The Guiding Hand," a two-part picture, showing Little Mary McAlister; a fresh "Paramount Travel" film; the latest Gazette, and other items. The orchestral selections are exceptionally attractive, and Mr. Gold, water plays a violin solo, "La Ronde des Lutins," at 4.30 and 8.30 p.m. daily.

Grafton Picture House.—"The Marriage Speculation," a five-act original drama, adapted from the novel by Cyrus Townsend Brady, with Mildred Manning in the leading part, is being shown at the Grafton Picture House, Grafton street. Other attractions include a two-act comedy, entitled "Damaged No Goods," and the latest interest and topical subjects, as well as excellent music by a string orchestra.

Bohemian Picture Theatre.—"In God's Good Time" is the title of a five-part drama of love and adventure, with Myrtle Gonzalez as the heroine, shown at the Bohemian Picture Theatre, Phibsborough. The scene of this fine Blue Bird production is laid amid the snows of Alaska, and alike in characters, scenery, and action, it is an example of exceptional merit and absorbing interest. It is supported by an attractive series of topical, cartoon, comedy, and interest subjects; while the Bohemian orchestra continues to maintain its high reputation.

Princess Cinema, Rathmines.—A Mary Pickford drama, entitled "The Romance of the Red Woods," is the chief item in a strong programme at the Princess Cinema, Rathmines, other films including comedy, topical, and dramatic subjects, and the latest Pathe Gazette. The orchestral music, under the direction of Professor Renaud, is in itself an exceptional treat. On Thursday "A Tyrant of Old Russia" will be the principal item in a fresh programme.

Pillar Picture House.—"The Little Red Terror" is the title of a dramatic film, with Violet Mersereau as the heroine, which is being exhibited to large audiences at the Pillar Picture House, Sackville street. The programme is one of all-round attractiveness, and also includes a laughable two-part comedy, entitled "A Blissful Calamity."

Rotunda Pictures.—Charlie Chaplin's latest Million Dollar comedy, "A Dog's Life," in three reels, heads the bill at the Rotunda Pictures this week. Other items include Mary Pickford in a four-part drama, entitled "The Foundling"; the fourth instalment of "The Fatal Ring," and a new Pathe Gazette; while variety turns are provided by Tom Burke, vocalist, and Baby Coventry, the child impersonator. The orchestral music, under the direction of Professor Dreyer, is a special feature.

Rathmines Town Hall.—"Daddy," a fine film adaptation of the popular song, is the principal pictorial attraction at the Town Hall, Rathmines. There are also some amusing comedies, as well as topical and interest pictures and fine orchestral music.

Kingstown Pavilion.—Last night at the Kingstown Pavilion the audience found a very entertaining programme. The features were a comedy drama, "With Chains of Gossamer," in which Franklyn Farnum played in his best vein. The O. Henry story was capital, truly reflecting the author's characterisation. Mr. Gogan promises for Thursday one of the best programmes yet arranged for the Pavilion. There are three prominent features—W. F. Hart in "The Last Card," a Western story; "The Magnificent Meddler," and Charlie Chaplin in "A Dog's Life." Holiday makers will be fully satisfied by the two entertainments.

CHILDREN AND THE DEATH SENTENCE.

ARGUMENTS IN BELFAST CASE.

At the Belfast Assizes yesterday, before Lord Justice Molony, the question was argued as to whether the provision of the Children Act, substituting detention for sentence of death, applied to Joseph Charles Fitt, convicted on Saturday of the wilful murder of a two-year-old child. The prisoner was under 16 years of age at the time of the crime, but is now over that age.

His Lordship said the case had raised a question of the gravest importance. On the whole view, and the best consideration he had been able to give to that case with the authorities which he had been able to collect at the present moment, he was of the opinion that the view of the Crown was right; but he fully recognised what Mr. Harrison said at the forefront of his most eloquent and persuasive appeal that there might be some authorities which might throw some light upon the intention of the Legislature, and he, therefore, felt that he was justified in yielding to his application that that was a proper case to submit to the Court for Crown Cases Reserved. That being so, under the Act he might do one of two things. He might either pronounce his judgment and invite the opinion of the Court as to whether that judgment was right, or he might postpone his judgment until the question was considered by the Court for Crown Cases Reserved, and then after that proceed to give judgment in accordance with the opinion of that Court. He thought it was better to adopt the latter course. In the meantime, he remanded the prisoner in custody to the Governor of the Belfast Jail. His Lordship added that there was no reason that the case should not be stated at once and that he should not be able to give the decision next week.

Coalville district schools, North Leicestershire, closed yesterday on account of influenza.

A Reuter's Jassy telegram says:—The Rumanian Chamber of Deputies, except for two dissentients, voted unanimously in favour of the impeachment of certain Ministers of the Bratiano Cabinet. The Commission has been charged with the task of inquiry.

High Prices for Turf.—Turf is selling at famine prices in Castlerea district. A horse-load of turf now costs 12/- per load. In pre-war times the same complement of turf could be had at 1/6 and 2/-.

LAW REPORTS.

Administration of a Church Charity.—In the Chancery Division, before the Master of the Rolls, in the matter of Hugh Boyd's charity, Ballycastle, Co. Antrim, an application was made on behalf of the trustees, the Primate, the Bishop of Down and Connor and Dromore, and the Rev. Thomas Cox, rector of Ramoan, for an order confirming a modification of the scheme founded under the will of the late Hugh Boyd for the maintenance of the services hitherto carried on in the church or chapel of ease of Ballycastle by substituting the appointment of a curate by the incumbent of the adjoining parish of Ramoan, instead of the incumbent of the parish of Ballycastle, to discharge the duties, and also appointing a new trustee in the room of Rev. Thomas Miller Benson, who became disqualified to act as trustee in consequence of having been promoted to the position of archdeacon. The nominal defendants are the Rev. Canon Isaac Purcell Barnes, incumbent of Ballycastle, the churchwardens of Ballycastle, the churchwardens of Ramoan, Kathleen Isabella Boyd, the owner of the Ballycastle estate, and the Attorney-General for Ireland. The Rev. Canon Barnes did not object to the proposed modification. It appeared that the incumbent of Ballycastle Church received about £80 a year for the discharge of the duties in connection with the church under the charity. The Church of Ballycastle is situated in the parish of Ramoan, and has no parochial district attached to it. The parish church of Ramoan is half-a-mile distant from the town of Ballycastle, and it was proposed that the rector for the time being of Ramoan should also be the incumbent of the Church of Ballycastle on the next vacancy. Having regard to these considerations it had been agreed between the trustees of the charity, Miss Kathleen Boyd, the Rev. Canon Barnes, the Rev. T. Cox, and the churchwardens and Select Vestry of Ballycastle Church, with the approval of the Diocesan Council, that as a vacancy shall occur in the incumbency of Ballycastle Church, Miss Boyd, during her lifetime, and after her death the bishop of the diocese for the time being, shall nominate the person who shall then be rector of Ramoan to the vacant incumbency, on the condition that the rector so appointed shall thereupon appoint a curate to serve in Ballycastle Church and to assist the rector in maintaining therein an early morning celebration of the Holy Communion each Sunday, and regular services on Sundays and holy days, in accordance with the Order of the Church of Ireland, the curate to be approved of by Miss Boyd before appointment, and after her death by the bishop of the diocese. Mr. Mark H. Cooper (instructed by Mr. J. Bernard), for the Attorney-General, expressed approval of the proposed modification, but suggested that there should be a provision introduced with the object of guarding against a prolonged vacancy in the event of Miss Boyd failing to nominate. Mr. Cecil Fforde (instructed by Messrs. Greer and Hamilton), who appeared for the trustees, said all the parties concerned had agreed as to the desirability of the modification. The Master of the Rolls said he would adjourn the application with the view of having regular evidence of the approval of the Diocesan Council.

Limerick Gentleman's Estate.—The matter of the estate of Thomas Nevins, deceased, late of Mount Shannon, Lisnagry, Co. Limerick, came before Mr. Justice O'Connor in the administration suit of Mary Cecilia Groom and Thomas A. Nevins and another. All the parties are children of the deceased, who left considerable property. The Chief Clerk found that the defendant, Thomas A. Nevins (who was the only executor, and proved the will in this country) had a sum of £85,640 11s. 9d. unaccounted for. Mr. Swayne, K.C., who (instructed by Messrs. Mears and Morris) appeared for the plaintiff, said Thomas A. Nevins sold up practically all the property and went to America, where he now lives. There was not much hope of getting anything from him now, but they were doing their best. Mr. Justice O'Connor granted Mr. Swayne's application, directing the unsold property to be sold, Messrs. Mears and Morris to have carriage. Mr. Leach, K.C. (instructed by Messrs. Hardman and Sons) appeared for the defendant, Thomas A. Nevins, and said they were unable to get into touch with him.

DUBLIN WORKHOUSE AMALGAMATION.

CONFERENCE OF THE GUARDIANS.

A conference between representatives of the North and South Dublin Boards of Guardians was held yesterday in the Boardroom of the South Union to consider the scheme for the amalgamation of the two unions.

Mr. J. J. McCarthy, Local Government Board Inspector, attended, and Mr. Greene, solicitor to the North Union, with the clerks of both Unions.

Mr. John Scully, Chairman of the South Union Guardians, presided.

Mr. Gately said they wanted to hear what there was to be said, and not to dictate.

The Chairman said that at least a majority of the South Dublin Guardians were in favour of amalgamation, and to constitute the two unions into one for the whole city, including Rathmines and Pembroke, and to transfer the rural portions to Rathdown, and the rural portion of the North Union to Balrothery. The Guardians of the South Union had come to the conclusion that amalgamation was inevitable, and must take place in some shape or form.

Mr. Greene said that the North Union Guardians had only appointed a committee to consider the question, and thought that the South Board of Guardians would adopt a similar course, and the deputation were not empowered to enter into any discussion.

Mr. Crimmins said the valuation of the North Union, outside the urban area, was £87,686, and of the South Union £92,000, or a total valuation of £184,397. On an average rate of 3/10 in the £ that would mean a loss to the city proper of £34,576, or nearly 1/2 in the £. While they would have that loss in the city, people from the rural districts would come into the workhouse for treatment.

Mr. Landy said that there would be a saving of £10,000 a year by amalgamation. In the rural area they were getting no return for what they contributed.

LOCAL GOVERNMENT BOARD'S POWERS.

Mr. McCarthy, Local Government Board Inspector, said that the Local Government Board had power to dissolve the North Dublin Board of Guardians or the South Dublin Board of Guardians, or to alter the area of the union by adding to or taking from its area. In proposing the present scheme, by transferring the rural portion of the North Union to Balrothery, and the rural portions of the South Union outside Rathmines and Pembroke to Rathdown, and constituting the whole city as one union area, the Local Government Board sought to have the suburban problem kept apart from the rural, as the conditions were so different. They were following in that respect the way areas were fixed in England. They also looked to the accommodation available in the South Union, which, though ample now, might not be so if circumstances changed and if the demands of the two unions were put upon one. The representation of the two unions at one meeting would be unwieldy; there would be 157 representatives for the two unions. To reduce it they would have to go to Parliament. There were Rural Guardians and District Councillors in each division, and to alter the representation would require an alteration in the whole system. The Local Government Board thought to keep the rural districts intact, and could only do so by submitting such a scheme for amalgamation as they had put forward.

Mr. Maguire said that three years ago the Local Government Board recommended a scheme for the amalgamation of Balrothery, Rathdown, and Celbridge, and he thought that a better suggestion than that now proposed.

Mr. McCarthy replied that the Board had power to dissolve a union, and had power to deal with the matter as they thought fit, and regulate the area. The scheme that had been contemplated by the Local Government Board had in view the using of both workhouses, but the military having taken the North Union Workhouse compelled the Board to have regard to the accommodation available. A point had been made with regard to what was stated would be a loss of £30,000 or £35,000. It was also alleged that people living at the outskirts would come into the Dublin Union. Take, for instance, Blackrock. It was in the Rathdown Union, but was more conveniently situated from the point of view of Dublin; but they did not find they were being imposed on by Blackrock.

Some Guardians—We are.

Mr. McCarthy—Only to a limited extent.

The Chairman said that there was no intention of taking a vote, as that was only a conference. The Guardians of each Union would deal with the matter on their own behalf.

The meeting adjourned till Monday next.

A Munich telegram to the Berliner Tageblatt says that Surgeon-General von Seydel stated in the Financial Committee of the Bavarian Chamber that the health of the army was unfavourably influenced by influenza.

DUBLIN AND DISTRICT.

Excessive Charge for Tea.—At Lucan Petty Sessions yesterday, Margaret McEvoy was fined 5s. and costs for charging 1/6 for half a pound of tea—6d. a lb. in excess of the controlled price. Number of the items were located.

Dublin Distress Relief Committee.—The audit of the Dublin Distress Relief Committee was opened yesterday by Mr. J. L. Kean, Local Government Board Inspector, in the rooms of the Committee, 23 Parliament street, Dublin. No objections to any of the items were lodged.

The Military Medal.—Corporal Stephen J. Nolan, Mechanical Transport, who has been awarded the Military Medal for gallantry on the field and devotion to duty, is the youngest son of the late John Nolan, 14 Northumberland square, Lower Abbey street, Dublin.

Breach of Fishery By-Laws.—Yesterday at Lucan Petty Sessions, the Board of Dublin Conservators of Fisheries prosecuted Mr. M. Kearns, of Weir View, Lucan, for having, on June 8th, attempted to take fish with his hands from the River Liffey at Lucan, contrary to the by-laws of the Department of Agriculture. Evidence having been given by Mr. Ernest Hill in support of the charge, defendant denied the accusation. A fine of £1 and £1 costs was imposed.

R.I.C. Pensioners.—A meeting of the Dublin Royal Irish Constabulary Pensioners' Association was held at 34 Lower Gardiner street, Dublin, on Thursday last to take into consideration the necessary steps in reference to the memorial recently sent to Lord Lieutenant, as to the granting of a war bonus to the pensioners. A deputation was named to act, on the part of the association, should an interview, as solicited, be granted by His Excellency. An intimation was received from the pensioners of the Dublin Metropolitan Police of their desire to become amalgamated with the association, which was very favourably considered. An accredited representative of the Recruiting Committee attended, and was given an audience.

Local Relief Committee.—Sir John Irwin, J.P., in the unavoidable absence of the Lord Mayor, presided at the general monthly meeting held in the Oak Room, Mansion House, Dublin. The Secretary (Mr. Fitzpatrick) read the reports presented on behalf of the Finance and General Purposes Committee, with reports on the relief operations of the Joint Employment Board, and of the Joint Relief Works Committee for the month of June, from which it appeared that a sum of £545 was disbursed during the month in relief wages, a further grant of £500 having been received from the Local Government Board from the National Relief Fund. The Joint Works Committee reported that the sale of farm produce from the Fairview and Kilester farm colonies and the Marine School of Market Gardening

THE AMERICAN MARKETS.

(REUTER'S TELEGRAMS.)

NEW YORK, MONDAY.

Stocks opened firmer, but soon reacted under professional selling and absence of outside interest; then buying of Railroads and covering in Steel Common effected a rally. Finally, however, on selling of War Stocks, the market closed heavy. Government Bonds easy. Money on call strong, 6 per cent. Sterling exchange steady and unchanged. Silver commercial bars unaltered.

COOMBE HOSPITAL.

The Board of Guardians and Directors of the hospital met on the sixteenth inst., when there were present:—Wm. M. Murphy, J.P. (in the chair), Wm. Dudley Darley, J.P.; W. H. Verschoyle, J.P.; Dr. Reid, A. Macaulay, Master; Lady Kane, Dr. R. M. Crone, Cocil Sealy, P.P.; James Robinson, Charles B. Chaytor, Hugh Kennedy, Rev. Thos. H. Steele, M.A.

The minutes of the board meeting of the 18th June, also those of the House Committee of 11th July, were read, confirmed, and signed; cheques ordered to be signed in payment of accounts recommended by latter committee amounting to £350 12s. 4d. Correspondence was submitted and ordered to be signed. The monthly reports from the Master, Registrar, Matron, and Staff Sister in charge of nurses' home were submitted, and orders made thereon, and routine business having been transacted the Board adjourned.

The Board desire to acknowledge with thanks receipt of the following gifts to the hospital:—Wm. F. Verschoyle, J.P., towels; special egg-day, etc.; Wm. Mention, Esq., £2 2s.; J. Green, £1 1s.; Mr. E. Seher, 10/6. Per the Lady Superintendent:—Ferrisinette, Mrs. Dundon; papers and magazines, Mrs. White; 100 yards flannelette, the Master; vegetables, Mrs. Hanly; butter and eggs, Mrs. [illegible]; Mrs. Wolfe; baby clothes, Mrs. Eyton; eggs, Mrs. Sheridan.

The Board of Guardians and Directors earnestly appeal for further assistance to carry on the benevolent work of the hospital.

Gifts of vegetables, provisions, etc., will be gratefully received by the Matron, and contributions of linen or clothing would be most acceptable for patients, many of whom are far too poor to provide the necessary garments required.

had already begun with satisfactory results. Eight girls who had received training at the Market Gardening School had been placed in regular and remunerative employment. Twelve new girls had been passed by the Joint Board of Relief Works Committees for suitable relief employment, bringing the total number of relief workers in this department to 150. Apart from wages, a sum of £40 had been expended during the month on the maintenance of the farm colonies. A very satisfactory report by Lady Russell and Miss Ellis of the Kilester Farm Colony and the Marine School of Gardening was read. Their recommendation that additional girls be given training in market gardening was unanimously adopted. Mr. F. J. M'Cabe, Local Government Board Inspector, expressed his view that his Board would give the proposal their favourable consideration.

FINANCIAL NEWS

DUBLIN STOCKS GOOD.

The outstanding feature from every point of view on 'Change yesterday was the special buoyancy of Government Funds on the good war news. Banks were scarce generally, but actual business poor. Breweries and Distilleries showed firmness. A big business was done in Marconis at rising prices, and subsidiaries were increasingly firm. Home Rails were buoyant. Dunlop issues were firm, but Deferred were on sale. Cotton Ord. were particularly strong. Burkes, Thoms, and Irish Times were all scarce, and bid for.

LONDON MONEY MARKET.

Bank Rate (changed April 5th, 1917) ...... 5 p.c.

The Money Market ruled firm, without material change. Week-end Government disbursements relieved the working margin a trifle; and the markets therefore did not further increase its indebtedness to the central institution. Call money, however, was wanted at 3 to 3½ p.c., and weekly loans at 3½ p.c. Business in Discounts was limited, but the market held firm at 3½ p.c. for bank drafts of all dates from two to six months. Short-dated Treasury Bills in the open market were also quoted at 3½ p.c., but there was not much business to report.

Spot Silver was unchanged at 48½d. per oz.

The following foreign exchange rates were current:—Paris cables, 27.14½ to 27.15½; Amsterdam, 9.11 to 9.13; Italy, 42.95 to 43.07; Madrid, 17.37 to 17.43; Christiania, 15.05 to 15.07; Stockholm, 13.39 to 13.43; Berne, 18.65 to 18.75; Rio, 90 days' bills, 11⅞d.

LONDON STOCKS STRONG.

The Stock Exchange started the week in excellent spirits on the good war news, and despite the pronounced character of the advance at Friday's close, support accumulated over the week-end was sufficient to give quotations a forward tendency in many directions. Scarcity of stock was again pronounced, and is likely to continue to be a factor in market developments in the future. The 4½ p.c. War Loan exceptionally reacted to 99¼. Among Miscellaneous Gilt-edged issues underlying conditions were cheerful and firm. The Colonial list showed to advantage. Indian Government issues were also bid for, the Threes being up to 58. Irish Land Loans ruled firm, and there was moderate support for Annuity Stocks.

ALLIED BONDS GOOD.—In the Foreign market French Fives were up to 80½ at one time, and the quotation left off ¼ to the good at 80¼. Japanese Bonds were on the firm side, and Russians were also inclined to advance again. Chinese issues were steady. Greeks favoured holders, and the Egyptian Pref. Loan, at 78, was a point to the good. Peruvians were in favour among South Americans. Brazilian Securities benefited from the recovery in the Rio exchange.

Changes.—Rises—French Loan, ¼ to 80¼; Peruvian Pref., ½ to 29½; Russian Fours, ½ to 40.

RAILS ALL BRIGHTER.—In the Home Railway department many good gains were recorded. The Lancs. and Yorks. dividend of 1½ p.c. for the half-year, or the same as a year ago, did not affect "Leeds" Stock, which remained at 69½, but many other Trunk and Trade Stocks scored advances averaging ½.

Canadian Pacifics did not move, but Grand Trunks turned firmer at the close. Mexican Rails showed no quotable alteration on the session. Argentine Rails preserved a good tone, but finally showed little variation, though Buenos Ayres and Pacific were good. Brazilian issues were steadier with other Brazilian issues, on the improvement in the exchange.

Changes.—Rises—Brighton A, ½ to 58½; Caledonian Def., ½ to 9½; Chatham, ½ to 9½; Great Central Def., ½ to 7; Great Eastern, ½ to 36½; Great Northern Pref., ½ to 61½; Great Western, ½ to 84½; London and N.W., ½ to 95½; Metropolitan District, ½ to 19½; Midland Def., ½ to 57½; North British Def., ½ to 15; South-Eastern Def., 1 to 34½; Underground 6 p.c. Fall—Antofagasta Def., 1 to 146½.

INDUSTRIALS FIRM.—In the Miscellaneous and Industrial Market P. and O. Def. was again a prominent feature, the stock soaring into the neighbourhood of 400, and closing at 397½. Royal Mails, at 135, were 2 higher, but Cunards showed little change. In the Brewery section, Allsopp Ord. advanced 2 to 39½, and the rest of the market was firm. There was not a great deal doing among Land Shares. Hudson's Bays were good at 5½. There was a fair gain of 6d. to 1/- among Iron and Steel Shares. Armament descriptions being unaffected by the strike threat. Marconis rose ¼ to 4. In the Textile section, Coats were lifted to 6½. The Explosives group showed irregularity. Nobels rose to 3½, but Eley Bros. at 2, were ¼ down. As regards Supply descriptions, Aeratods made a good finish around 57/-.

Changes.—Rises—Anglo-Amer. Tel. Def., ½ to 22½; Marconi Ord., ½ to 4; Brit. Oil and Cake, ½ to 10; Coats, ½ to 6½; Harrods, ⅛ to 3½; Johns Brown (15/- pd.), 1/- to 30/-; Nobels, ⅛ to 3½; P. and O. Def., 5 to 397½; Royal Mail, 2 to 135; Allsopp Pref. Ord., 2 to 39½; Pekin Syndicate, ⅛ to 1¼. Falls—Eley Bros., ½ to 2; Brit. Col. Elec. Railway Pref., 1 to 60.

OIL SHARES UNCERTAIN.—Oil Shares were a spotty market. There was a jump to 35/- in Venezuelan Concessions, on persistent reports of acquisition by the Shell interests. The Egyptian group also eased off. Ural Caspians jumped to 23/9, and Spies gained the turn.

Changes.—Anglo-Egypt. B, 46/7½-7½d.; Burmah, 8⅜-½; Kern River, 13/3-5d.; Lobitos, 45/3-5d.; Mexican Eagle, 65/7½-1½d.; do. Pref., 65/3½-10½d.; Shell, 141.3+7½d.; Spies, 9/10½+4½d.; Trinidad, 12/6+6d. Ural Caspian, 23/9+2/9.

MINING MARKET BETTER.—Business among Mines was only moderate. There was another good advance among Russian Shares, though Russo-Asiatics did not close at the best of the session. Among South Africans, Kaffirs were spotty, with cheerfulness in places, while among Diamonds De Beers Def. advanced. Chartereds worked forward, but other Rhodesians displayed irregularity. The Barrier group was quiet. Tin Shares were stimulated by a further rise of £3 per ton in the price of the metal.

RISE IN RUBBER SHARES.—Rubber was unchanged at 2/2½ per lb. The Share Market had a strong tone. Prices were up all round, and in a good many securities dealings were more numerous than for a long time past. Bah Lias were ¼ up at 32/6. Batu Tiga were ¼ better at 72/6. Castlefield were around 6¼. Johore Rubber Lands changed hands around 27/9. Linggi were in demand at 28/7½, and finished 23/9 bid. Malayalam changed hands several times around 34/-. Rubber Plantations Trust were 3d. higher at 25/9. Sedenak were taken at 34/6, and Sendayan at 33/-, while Seremban marked 35/-. Sungei Batu marked 41/-, while Sumatra Consols were ½ better at 47/6. Pioneers were active, Anglo-Java especially so about 6/1½. Batang Malaka were done at 4/-, and Bekoh at 4/11. Bukit Sembawang were active around 2/9. Dalkeith were done at 2/3. London Asiatic were dealt in around 8/3. Perak were 1½d. harder at 6/10½. Straits Bertam finished 4½d. up at 6/3. United Serdang around 10/-. In the Borneo section Bode, after changing hands around 2/4, finished at 2/3. Beaufort rose 1/- to 22/6. Kapar was came at 20/9. Lamag were 2d. up, but Langkon 6d. lower. Sapong were done at 27/-.

CONSUMPTION HAS BEEN CURED.
A Remedy for Consumption Has been found.

DEREK P. TONKERMAN, Discoverer of the New Remedy for Consumption.

Marvellous as it may seem after centuries of failure, a remedy has been discovered that has cured the deadly consumption even in the advanced stages of the disease. You will no longer doubt that Consumption can be cured after reading the proof of hundreds of cases cured by this wonderful discovery—some after change of climate and all other remedies tried had failed, and the cases had been pronounced hopeless of cure. This new remedy has also proved itself effective and speedy in curing Catarrh, Bronchitis, Asthma, and many serious chest and lung troubles. In order that all in need of this wonderful product of science may test its efficacy for themselves, a company has been formed to give it to the world, and a Free Trial Treatment can be obtained by writing to the Derk P. Yonkerman Co., Ltd., Dept. 23, 13 Woodstock street, Oxford street, London, W. 1, enclosing 6d. in stamps to cover cost of carriage, packing, and mentioning this paper. The trial treatment will then be sent you by return post, carriage paid.

ABSOLUTELY FREE.
Do not wait if you have any of the symptoms of Consumption, if you have Chronic Catarrh, Bronchitis, Asthma, pains in your chest, a cold on your lungs, or any throat or lung trouble, write to-day for a free trial treatment and book of instructions, and benefit yourself. Write it to-day.—(Advt.)

ATTEMPTED SHIPMENT OF IMMATURE CATTLE.

HEAVY PENALTIES IMPOSED.

Convicted at Londonderry Petty Sessions yesterday of attempting to ship immature cattle, Samuel Robert Gordon Gormley, Bridge street, Doherty, cattle dealer, of Londonderry, were each fined £100; James M'Laughlin, buyer, £5; and several others of a similar kind were fined £1 each. Evidence was given that young heifers, which could not legally be shipped, were found in a yard, and that some had on them the brand used on cattle passed for shipment, and that these were subsequently found on board a steamer with another cattle properly branded.

Dr. Todd undertook to return the cattle, which were automatically forfeited, on the payment of the costs of maintenance since seizure.

Mr. Babington, K.C., appeared for the defendants.

THE CORK STEAM PACKET COMPANY.

Last evening, in the City Hall, Cork, a public meeting was held for the consideration of the proposal made for the acquisition of the shares capital of the City of Cork Steam Packet Company, and the steps to be taken with the object of preserving the interests of the trading community in view of the proposal. The Lord Mayor presided. "A letter was read from Mr. Rhen Pike, chairman of the company, in the course of which he stated that the important point in connection with the proposal lay in the fact that the company, at the present time, and possibly, standing alone, redeem the position created by the destruction of their fleet, while the influence and appearance of the new projected alliance, can, he believed, redeem the position as quickly as it was possible to do. He was satisfied that the proposal was a calculated to secure substantial benefits for the trading community.

On the proposition of Major O'Connor, seconded by Mr. Coffey, Cattle Trade Association, a resolution was passed approving of the proposal and the conditions of sale that a service of steamers shall in future be maintained equal to that owned by the Steam Packet Company in pre-war times, and calling on the Harbour Commissioners to render impossible a monopoly of the cross-Channel traffic. On the motion, including the Lord Mayor, was appointed to see the directors of the Packet Company to place the views of the meeting before them.

IRELAND'S COAL SUPPLY.

question of imported coal, you, no doubt, will be interested to hear something about the present position of the Irish coal mines. The three principal mines now working are:—Arigna, Wolfhill, and Castlecomer, and I will deal with those separately. Arigna.—The Arigna Mining Company are at present working on the east side of the hill 3 adits, and a private owner 1 adit, producing about 80 tons per day—arrangements have just been completed by the Government to at once begin and push on with all speed the construction of about ¾ miles of railway from Arigna Station, along the Arigna Valley, getting as close as possible to the coal fields. The Mining Company and the private owner will, at their own expense, construct ropeways, etc., to connect the adits with the railway, and when all these works are complete—which will not be very long—250 tons per day can be turned out; moreover, the owners have other extensive royalties, and expect to open up other adits—with proportionate increase in the output. The estimated deposit is 20,000,000 to 50,000,000 tons.

Wolfhill.—Mr. Parkinson is at present working one pit—big 4, Grace field—and turning out 80 tons per day. The railway built by the Government from Athy Station—a distance of about 6¼ miles—is now complete, and it is hoped that new remains is to put down a short siding to Graceficld pit, and another to Mcdaloch pit, when it is expected that about 500 tons per day, increasing to 1,000 tons. Moreover, other pits in the district can be opened up. The two pits mentioned will be constructed by the Government, and Mr. Parkinson will pay an interest on the outlay. Moreover, Mr. Parkinson has undertaken at his own expense, construct the necessary ropeways to connect the pits with the railway. The estimated deposit is 60,000,000 tons.

Castlecomer.—The present output here is 250 tons per day. A railway similar to that which has been constructed to Arigna and also the new railway from the Great Southern and Western Railway near Kilkenny to Castlecomer, a distance of about nine miles. One hundred men are at present employed building the line, and it is expected that from 500 to 600 men will be employed in two or three weeks' time. When this railway is completed Grand Canal Wharf expects to increase his output to 200,000 tons per annum. He will, at his own expense, construct a very extensive quay to the canal, and also put in three pits not working, and other pits to be opened up with the railway. The estimated deposit is 100,000,000 tons.

WORK IN SMALLER MINES.

There are other smaller mines working at present, such as the Portrush and Ballycastle, Coal in Mount Charles, and other ordinary and Dungannon, Coalisland, County Tipperary, County Cork, etc.—which is not being worked, but which is privately owned, and has on its books at Dungannon and Coalisland are the most extensive, and it is hoped that under existing conditions they will be able to do much more for a long time—that private enterprise will come forward and work, particularly as there is every encouragement in the Government's offer. As the quality of coal at present being got is usually unfavorable, it is very important that works and other consumers of coal should provide themselves with suitable furnaces, ranges, etc., for burning it. Interesting experiments have to bear that recently, at the instigation of the Chief Secretary and the Controller of Coal Mines, a locomotive, accompanied by Mr. Leburn, mining representative of the Board of Agriculture, made an examination of all the Irish coal mines, and a report is in course of preparation. I am sure you will also be pleased to hear that Mr. Short, the Chief Secretary, within the past couple of weeks, thoroughly inspected the mines at Arigna, Dungannon, Coalisland, Wolfhill, and Castlecomer, and as a result that things have been quickly pushed on. Mr. Short also visited Kenoch, Arklow, and other mines, and took a keen interest himself in the development of all sorts of Irish industries.

APPEAL FOR ECONOMY

I have now given an outline of the position with respect to coal matters in Ireland, and have endeavored to impress upon the public interest of the greatest possible economy in the consumption of coal, and I appeal to the people of the Rotarian Area to do their utmost in the general public to help to bring about the desired economy. I am convinced that even with the smaller quantity of coal which will be available now and in the future, we will with care be able to carry on the trade. There is not-street economy we will have to face the unpleasant spectacle of works closing, unemployment, and the public generally being without fires or light. To avoid these things waste under all heads must stop. Profiteering must stop; public authorities, and coal merchants have power under the Defence of the Realm Regulations to fix prices everywhere. In addition to economy, the use of substitutes, such as turf and timber, will be necessary, and I am glad to know that much progress has been cut, and I hope that the owners will in due course put the output on reasonable price. Another means of saving coal is the utilisation of water-power wherever possible. (Applause.)

In conclusion, Mr. Burgess said it would only be fair to the Controller to say that it is that the best could be got out of their position, but they would have to have no nonsense about it. He knew that his friend, Mr. Bryan Cooper, was a people unnecessarily. He was only sorry that he had not been taken seriously months ago. If it were not too late, he would have much more coal in Dublin to-day.—(Applause.)

MERCHANTS' QUESTIONS.

Several questions were put to Mr. Burgess.

Mr. Charles Jacob asked if the Arigna portion of coal required for manufacturing gas purposes as regards its domestic use.

Mr. S. W. Maddock, D.L., asked if anything had been done to increase the production of coal in the Queen's County. He would know whether anything had been done facilitate the gas companies to produce better gas.

Mr. Alfie Byrne, T.C., asked if the trades, electricity power order, and said they were very serious for houses using motors. It was quite impossible for them to get a supply of gas, and if the electric power was cut off it would be absolutely impossible to carry on their businesses.

MR. EASON'S CRITICISM.

Mr. Eason expressed the fear that some people who had been accustomed to coal in the past year might find themselves far worse off than those who had been extravagant. It seemed to him that something should be done to ration coal in proportion to household requirements. To base anyone's supply on their last winter's consumption would not, he thought, be quite equitable. Most of the rationing schemes, except the Food Control schemes, had the serious fault that they were based on the old system. Much coal would be burnt without the assistance of English coal.

MR. BURGESS'S REPLY.

Mr. Burgess, answering the different questions, said that the best estimates showed that the consumption of coal for manufacturing purposes and for domestic use was about equal. As to the increase in the supply of turf, he thought he was right in saying that the supply of turf had been increased a hundred per cent. More might have been available if the Land Commission, which had large areas, could have done anything, but they were so tied up by Acts of Parliament that they could do nothing. As regards the question asked about the price, he was quite sure that profiteering would not be allowed. He did not know that anything had been done to prevent the gas companies from not giving the quality of gas that they ought to give. He was not aware that the quality of gas was worse. The only thing was that the gas companies might have been called upon to produce a certain gas which would take away from the lighting quality. Nothing had been done about rationing gas. If people would only join with the coal merchants and gas companies, and make their own arrangements so that they could conduct their businesses in their own way, they would be much better for them than having put up against them hard and fast rationing arrangements. Of course, if that was not done rationing would have to be imposed. As regards the cutting off of electric power for motors he was quite sure that the Corporation would not cut off power where it was really necessary. He was quite sure that the Electric Lighting Committee would provide sufficient motive power. As to the people who had economised in coal he did not accept all his friend's enjoyment in Ireland was that no one would do anything unless they were compelled to do it. Almost all Irish coal, he said, was anthracite coal. It was hard to light, but once it was alight it kept burning, and burned for a long time. It was very important that Irish people should use Irish coal. What it wanted was wider bars to the grates so as to let in more air.

EARLIER PERFORMANCES IN THEATRES.

He thoroughly agreed that there was no reason why theatres, cinemas, and other such places should not begin their performances earlier and close earlier. Such an arrangement would save power, light, and coal; it would save many things, including coal on the tramway services, where a good deal was being used. (Applause.)

The President thanked Mr. Burgess, and said that the Rotary Club entered into the spirit of his difficulties, and appreciated his aim to enable business men to control their own businesses.

The proceedings concluded.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR.

IRISH RECRUITING.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE IRISH TIMES.

Sir,—Among many to whom I have spoken, and whose opinions I value, there is a common feeling that recruiting speeches to Chambers of Commerce and local councils—are to those that are sympathetic—will have only poor results, unless the individual members can be induced to make the subject an urgent and imperative cause, to be forwarded by them day by day as best they can.

Academic discourses or carefully reasoned appeals to the logical faculties are too often received with a bored respect, and quickly fade from mind. There is little reason or logic in Sinn Fein, but a good deal of appeal to popular imagination and emotion—hence largely its success. The realities of the war problem in relation to Ireland everyone understands already. To bring its romance and emotional side more prominently into notice might have some practical effect, even without the prime dynamic and necessary influence—a word of encouragement for voluntarily recruiting from the heads of the Churches, without distinction of creed. And why should not the Recruiting Council make a direct appeal to them?

In past recruiting efforts in Ireland I have taken a small part, and am more than ever desirous of seeing Ireland, while yet there is time, doing her full share of war services. That there would be embarrassments, I embarrass the new Council now engaged in the work. Occasionally, however, its tactics invite, and have already provoked, criticism.

Might I suggest one thing, as most pressing and essential—that a special list of recruiting areas should be specified and their several populations given, together with the number of open vacancies required to fill the efforts of the Recruiting Council are being watched with sympathetic interest, but time is passing.—Yours, etc.,

Mount Jerome House, Dublin, July 22nd, 1918. H. C. MADDOCK.

AGRICULTURAL WAGES.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE IRISH TIMES.

Sir,—In the issue of Friday last Mr. Prothero is reported as having said in the House of Commons that the wages of agricultural labourers in England were mostly in the region of 40s. per week." The report in the Daily Express says: "Mr. Prothero said that the region of about 30s. a week. Whether that could continue to be paid depended largely on the prices. I am rather figure as obviously the correct one.—Yours, etc.,

THE INFLUENZA EPIDEMIC.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE IRISH TIMES.

Sir,—At the request of Sir Charles Cameron and the medical faculty, we, managers of Dungannon Union, beg to call your attention to the fact that influenza should spread through the children. The Sunday schools and Children's Service have also been closed, and still the epidemic prevails. Last night, coming home from church, I noticed that the public houses in the principal streets were thronged with people waiting to get into the various picture houses were permitted. Surely these places could be reasonably be closed during this terrible epidemic of influenza.—Yours, etc.,

A CHURCH IN CHINA.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE IRISH TIMES.

Sir,—No long ago we were horrified to learn that, at the beginning of the war, the Germans in Russian soldiers were sent into battle without weapons. Shall we not be much to blame if we permit missionaries of the Faith to be impeded with what is necessary for the control? Such is the case in China, where the Faith is at the most important city in the district under the charge of Irish Vincentian Missionaries. Mission is very promising work is going on there, but it is being sadly hindered for want of a church. There is only one church in the city, and it is filled at every way that enquirers, on coming to the Services, are repelled from the Church instead of being attracted. It is heartbreaking to see those who are coming in numbers to the Christian message driven away, and the devoted labours of our missionaries seriously brought to nothing for want of proper building.

It is not our part to supply the need? A suitable church, large enough to hold 1,000. The D.U.F.M. committee has promised £1,000. They cannot give more. Several generous donations have been promised at recent meet at Trinity College, Fen Gloucester street, and I would be grateful if the clergy and the missionaries of the diocese are contributing for this purpose. Appeal is also addressed to the interested in missions to assist the mission of the Irish Church by helping to make up the sum required. Donations gratefully received by me, and to be sent to the Rev. E. J. Young, D.D., 50 North Circular road, Dublin.

MR. JUSTICE DODD AND TERRORISM.

Yesterday Mr. Justice Dodd, who was accompanied by Mr. W. F. O'Connor, City High Sheriff, and the Commission of Assize for the City of Cork.

His Lordship, in the course of his address to the Grand Jury, said that he, as a magistrate, J.P., was foreman, said that he had only one duty to discharge, and that was, to keep the peace and to maintain the law of the land. Armed resistance to the law must be put down with a strong hand and an outstretched arm, and he was determined to do it. Having served in city business, which possessed no unusual features, he said that they were asked to try cases of a character other than their own. It was on the ground that in their city the fairest trial could be had of any city in Ireland. He could not think that the high character for hospitality, the great kindness and sympathy of the City of Cork to himself individually when he first came to the county, were about to be changed. On the second occasion he had been carried away by the great welcome awaiting Mary Pickford. That had been to some extent changed; the hope of prosperity had been only postponed, but the blossoming of the country had come to their order and baffled their prosperity. So, in the interest of peace and prosperity in Cork, he had to appeal to the Grand Jury to aid him and in the interests of the great countries with which they were associated against the menace of war that was sweeping the world. The menace of armed force at home. He thought there was a ray of hope, and had come to think that the great majority of those around them and the victories their armies were winning in the foreign field. A dark cloud hung over their land when he was with them last time, and this cloud, which had come in such a short time, might be dispelled as quickly. He would now ask their attention to the other cases for trial. The first was the case against David Kent, from County Cork, who was charged with having, on the 15th of July, unlawfully and maliciously murder a named person with a real intent which could be carried out. The general mention of killing soldiers might be construed in some kind to justify military action under the Defence of the Realm Act to prevent him from being similarly again, but that was for them to find. He proposed to take up next day (Tuesday) the case of Patrick O'Brien, John O'Brien, and William O'Brien for murder. After that he would take up the case of murder against Charles Quain, County Limerick. There was another most serious case against William Ryan, Michael Hanley, and Thomas O'Loughlin, of conspiracy to defeat the course of duty by seeking, by threats and menaces, and the offer of £100 to deter an injured person from seeking the protection of the law. That ended the first chapter. He had thirteen cases more from Kerry, Clare, and King's County. He was not going to discharge the Grand Jury, but would ask them to come back on Tuesday week and hear the outlying cases. It was the duty of everyone in the community to help and to put an end to these attempts to prevent him from doing justice, and put down with a strong hand the protection of the law. That ended the first in this country. He looked upon all this terrorism as a thing that they could not help people suffering from, but as wrongdoers came in and promised to obey the law they would receive from the jurors and himself merciful treatment.

The Grand Jury found no bill in the case in which David Rice Kent was charged with inciting people to murder soldiers, and he was discharged.

PUBLIC AMUSEMENTS.

GAIETY THEATRE.

A play entitled "Five Nights," "a love problem of all ages," was performed at the Gaiety Theatre last evening by Mr. F. W. Warden and K. F. Hoosen's Co. The programme states that the play is prepared for the stage by its author, Victoria Cross, from her world-famous novel, but it is obvious that there have been many changes made in the dramatic representation of the story. The love story of an artist looking for his ideal amongst many models is not a tale which would appeal to the ordinary play-goer, but the playwright weaves a neat story, in which the more current runs strongly, so as to disarm criticism by the manner in which she unfolds her tale. In its development there is much suggestiveness, and frequently one wonders why the author has allowed the play to take dramatic form. The dialogue is poor, the construction lacks motion, and the characters are thinly drawn, so that the general result is unconvincing. The plot, which deals with the emotions of an artist, Trevor—whose pictures are always unfinished in his anxiety to achieve the ideal—is a very poor peg upon which to hang the dramatic theme. But what is lacking in the author's attempts is amply compensated by the excellence of the acting. Phillip Anthony, as Trevor gives an excellent portrayal as an infatuated artist, while Miss Phyllis Joyce, as his cousin Vera, was instant sympathy. Morely, Anthony's bachelor friend, was capably represented by Mr. Barry, whilst other artists who distinguished themselves were Miss Kyle, Miss Ryley H. Deegan, and the Misses Muriel Tanner, Sylvia Rubano, Peggy Charns, and Lena Anson. The play was effectively staged, while the music played by the Gaiety orchestra added much to the enjoyment of the audience.

Carlton Cinema.

—Mary Pickford, in "Rebecca of Sunnybrook Farm," is the principal feature in the production attended from the famous novel by Kate Douglas Wiggins, in the chief attraction in the programme at the Carlton Cinema in Upper Sackville street. The film is being exhibited for the first time in Dublin, and is entitled "The Little Red Wedding Hand," a two-part picture, showing Lillian Walker, Edward Connelly, Frank Bennett, Jack Dillon, Lucille Stanley, and other stars. The orchestra will render selections from the works of Verdi, Wagner, and Mascagni, and Miss Ethel Hamilton will sing at each performance. Next week's programme will include "La Rondo des Lutins," and "Cavalleria Rusticana."

Grafton Picture House.

—The Marriage Specialist," a five-act original drama, adapted from the novel by Mrs. Alfred Sidgwick, and produced by Mr. Maurice Maning in the leading part, is being shown at the Grafton Picture House. Other attractions include a two-act comedy, entitled "Damaged No Goods," and the usual interesting selection of topicalities as well as exceptional music by a strong orchestra.

Coliseum Picture Theatre.

—"In God's Good Time" is the title of a five-part drama of love and intrigue, which is being shown at the above picture house on the ground that in their city-the fairest trial could be had of any city in Ireland. He could not think that the high character for hospitality, the great kindness and sympathy of the City of Cork to himself individually when he first came to the county, were about to be changed. On the second occasion he had been carried away by the great welcome awaiting Mary Pickford. # LAW REPORTS.

Administration of a Church Charity.

—In the Chancery Division, before the Master of the Rolls, in the matter of Hugh Boyd's charity, Ballycastle, Co Antrim, an application was made on behalf of the trustees, the Primate, the Bishop of Down and Connor and Dromore, and the Rev. Thomas Connector of Ramoan, for an order confirming a modification of the scheme founded under the will of the late Hugh Boyd for the maintenance of the services hitherto carried on in the church or chapel of ease of Ballycastle by substituting the appointment of a curate by the incumbent of the adjoining parish of Ramoan, instead of the incumbent of the parish of Ballycastle, to discharge the duties, and also appointing a new trustee in the room of Rev. Thomas Miller Bennett, who became disqualified to act as trustee in consequence of having been promoted to the position of archdeacon. The nominal defendants are the Rev. Canon Isaac Purcell Barnes, incumbent of Ballycastle, the church-wardens of Ballycastle, the churchwardens of Ramoan, Kathleen Isabella Boyd, the owner of the Ballycastle estate, and the Attorney-General for Ireland. The Rev. Canon Barnes did not object to the proposed modification. It appeared that the incumbent of Ballycastle Church received about £50 a year for the discharge of the duties in connection with the church under the charity. The Church of Ballycastle is situated in the parish of Ramoan, and has no parochial district attached to it. The parish church of Ramoan is half-a-mile distant from the town of Ballycastle, and it was proposed that the rector for the time being of Ramoan should also be the incumbent of the Church of Ballycastle on the next vacancy occurring in those circumstances. It had been agreed between the trustees of the charity, Miss Kathleen Boyd, the Rev. Canon Barnes, Mr. S. T. Cox, and the churchwardens and Select Vestry of Ballycastle Church, with the consent of the Diocesan Council, that as a vacancy shall occur in the incumbency of Ballycastle Church the Rector of Ramoan to the vacant incumbency, on the condition that the rector so appointed shall not make any appoint a curate to serve in Ballycastle Church except by the consent of the trustees of the parish church of Ballycastle on the next vacancy occurring in those circumstances. It had been agreed between the trustees of the charity, Miss Kathleen Boyd, the Rev. Canon Barnes, Mr. S. T. Cox, and the churchwardens and Select Vestry of Ballycastle Church, with the consent of the Diocesan Council, that as a vacancy shall occur in the incumbency of Ballycastle Church the Rector of Ramoan to the vacant incumbency, on the condition that the rector so appointed shall not make any appoint a curate to serve in Ballycastle Church except by the consent of the trustees of the parish of Ballycastle on the next vacancy occurring in those circumstances. It was agreed between the parties that the scheme should be settled by the Master. Counsel—Mr. Ronan, K.C., and Mr. Wylie, K.C., instructed by Messrs. Orme and Wilson, solicitors for the plaintiffs; Mr. Ingram, K.C., and Mr. Bailey, instructed by Messrs. Orme and Wilson, solicitors for the defendants; Mr. Cecil Fleetwood Shaw, instructed by Mr. Joseph Hall, solicitor for the Attorney-General, expressed approval of the proposed modification. Counsel for the defendants asked for a provision introduced with the object of guarding against a prolonged vacancy in the event of Miss Boyd failing to nominate. Mr. Cecil Fleetwood Shaw, instructed by Messrs. Orme and Wilson, solicitors for the plaintiffs, said all the parties concerned had agreed as to the desirability of the modification. The Master of the Rolls said he would adjourn the application with the view of having further evidence filed on behalf of the Diocesan Council.

DUBLIN STOCKS GOOD.

The outstanding feature from every point of view on 'Change yesterday was the special buoyancy of Government Funds on the good war news. Banks were scarce generally, but actual business poor. Breweries and Distilleries showed firmness. A big business was done in Marconis at rising prices, and subsidiaries were increasingly firm. Home Rails were buoyant. Dunlop issues were firm, but Deferred were on sale. Cotton Ord. were particularly strong. Burkes, Thoms, and Irish Times were all scarce, and bid for.

LONDON MONEY MARKET.

Bank Rate (changed April 5th, 1917) ...... 5 p.c.

The Money Market ruled firm, without material change. Week-end Government disbursements relieved the working margin a trifle, and the market therefore did not further increase its indebtedness to the central institution. Call money, however, was wanted at 3 to 3½ p.c., and weekly loans at 3¼ p.c. Business in Discounts was limited, but the market held firm at 3½ p.c. for bank drafts of all dates from two to six months. Short-dated Treasury bills in the open market were also quoted at 3½ p.c., but there was not much business to report.

Spot Silver was unchanged at 48 11/16d. per oz.

The following foreign exchange rates were current:—Paris cables, 27.14½ to 27.15½; Amsterdam, 9.11 to 9.15; Italy, 42.95 to 43.07; Madrid, 17.37 to 17.43; Christiania, 15.05 to 15.07; Stockholm, 13.39 to 13.42; Berne, 18.68 to 18.73; Rio, 90 days' bills, 11 11/16d.

LONDON STOCKS STRONG.

The Stock Exchange started the week in excellent spirits on the good war news, and despite the pronounced character of the advance at Friday's close, support accumulated over the week-end was sufficient to give quotations a forward tendency in many directions. Scarcity of stock was again pronounced, and is likely to continue to be a factor in market developments in the future. The 4½ p.c. War Loan exceptionally reacted to 99¾. Among Miscellaneous Gilt-edged issues underlying conditions were cheerful and firm. The Colonial list showed to advantage. Indian Government issues were also bid for, the Threes being up to 58. Irish Land Loans ruled firm, and there was moderate support for Annuity Stocks.

ALLIED BONDS GOOD.—In the Foreign market French Fives were up to 80⅞ at one time, and the quotation left off ⅛ to the good at 80¾. Japanese Bonds were on the firm side, and Russians were too inclined to advance again. Chinese issues were steady. Greeks favoured holders, and the Egyptian Pref. Loan, at 78, was a point to the good. Peruvians were in favour among South Americans.

Brazilian Securities benefited from the recovery in the Rio exchange.

Changes:—Rises—French Loan, ⅛ to 80¾; Peruvian Pref., ⅛ to 29⅛; Russian Fours, ⅛ to 40.

RAILS ALL BRIGHTER.—In the Home Railway department many good gains were recorded. The Lancs. and Yorks. dividend of 1½ p.c. for the half-year, or the same as a year ago, did not affect "Leeds" Stock, which remained at 69⅛, but many other Trunk and Trade Stocks scored advances averaging ½.

Canadian Pacifics did not move, but Grand Trunks turned firmer at the close. Mexican Rails showed no quotable alteration on the session. Argentine Rails preserved a good tone, but finally showed little variation, though Buenos Ayres and Pacific were good. Brazilian Rails were steadier with other Brazilian issues, on the improvement in the exchange.

Changes:—Rises—Brighton A, ⅛ to 58¾; Caledonian Def., ⅛ to 9⅛; Chatham, ⅛ to 9⅛; Great Central Def., ⅛ to 7; Great Eastern, ⅛ to 36⅛; Great Northern Pref., ⅛ to 61⅛; Great Western, ⅛ to 86⅛; London and N.W., ⅛ to 95⅛; Metropolitan District, ⅛ to 19⅛; Midland Def., ⅛ to 59⅛; North British Def., ⅛ to 15; South-Eastern Def., 1 to 34⅛; Underground 6 p.c. Bonds, 1⅛ to 99⅛; Grand Trunk 3rd Pref., ⅛ to 26; Argentine Great Western, 1 to 63; Brazil Rail Pref., ⅛ to 12⅛; Buenos Ayres and Pacific, 2 to 58; Buenos Ayres and Western, ⅛ to 72⅛; Central Uruguay, 2 to 68; Entre Rios, 1 to 77. Fall—Antofagasta Def., 1 to 140⅛.

INDUSTRIALS FIRM.—In the Miscellaneous and Industrial Market P. and O. Def. was again a prominent feature, the stock soaring into the neighbourhood of 400, and closing at 397⅛. Royal Mails, at 135, were 8 higher; but Cunards showed little change. In the Brewery section, Allsopp Ord. advanced 2 to 39⅛, and the rest of the market was firm. There was not a great deal doing among Land Shares. Hudson's Bays were good at 8⅛. There were a few gains of 6d. to 1/- among Iron and Steel Shares. Armament descriptions being unaffected by the strike threat. Marconis rose ⅛ to 4. In the Textile section Coats were lifted to 6⅛. The Explosive group showed irregularity. Nobels rose to 3⅛, but Eley Bros., at 2, were 1/16 down. As regards Supply descriptions, Aerateds made a good finish around 57/-.

Changes:—Rises—Anglo-Amer. Tel. Def., ⅛ to 22⅛; Marconi Ord., ⅛ to 4; Brit. Oil and Cake, ⅛ to 1⅛; Coats, ⅛ to 6⅛; Harrods, 1/16 to 2⅛; John Brown (15/- pd.), 1/- to 30/-. Nobel, ⅛ to 3⅛; P. and O. Def., 3 to 397⅛; Royal Mail, 2 to 135; Allsopp Pref. Ord., 2 to 39⅛; Pekin Syndicate, ⅛ to 1⅛. Falls—Eley Bros., 1/16 to 2; Brit. Col. Elec. Railway Pref. 1 to 60⅛.

OIL SHARES UNCERTAIN.—Oil Shares were a spotty market. There was a jump to 55/- in Venezuelan Concessions, on persistent reports of acquisition by the Shell interests. The Egyptian group was about the same. Ural Caspians jumped to 25/9, and Spies gained the turn.

Changes:—Anglo-Egypt. B, 46/7½-7½d.; Burmah, 8⅛+3d.; Kern River, 12/3-3d.; Lobitos, 45/3+3d.; Mexican Eagle, 63/7½+4½d.; do. Pref., 65/1½+10½d.; Shell, 141/3+7½d.; Spies, 9/10½+4½d.; Trinidad, 12/6+6d.; Ural Caspian, 25/9+2/9.

MINING MARKET BETTER.—Business among Mines was only moderate. There was another good advance among Russian Shares, though Russo-Asiatics did not close at the best of the session. Among South Africans, Kaffirs were spotty, with cheerfulness in places, while among Diamonds De Beers Def. advanced. Chartereds worked forward, but other Rhodesians displayed irregularity. The Barrier group was quiet. Tin Shares were stimulated by a further rise of £5 per ton in the price of the metal.

RISE IN RUBBER SHARES.—Rubber was unchanged at 2/2⅛ per lb. The Share Market had a strong tone. Prices were up all round, and in a good many securities dealings were more numerous than for a long time past. Bah Lias were 1/16 up at 32/6. Batu Tiga were ⅛ better at 72/6. Castlefield were around 6⅛. Johore Rubber Lands changed hands around 27/9. Linggi were in demand at 25/7½, and finished 25/9 bid. Malayalam changed hands several times around 34/-. Rubber Plantations Trust were 3d. higher at 25/6. Sedenak were taken at 34/6, and Sendayan at 33/-, while Sremban marked 55/-. Sungei Batu marked 41/-, while Sumatra Consols were ⅛ better at 47/6. Foriners were active, Anglo-Java especially so about 6/1⅛. Batang Malaka were done at 4/-, and Bekoh at 4/1⅛. Bukit Sembawang were active around 2/9. Dalkeith were done at 2/3. London Asiatic were dealt in around 8/3. Perak were 1½d. harder at 6/10½. Straits Beriam finished 4½d. up at 6/3½. United Serdang around 10/-. In the Borneo section Bode, after changing hands around 2/4, finished at 2/3. Beaufort rose 1/- to 22/6. Kapowas came at 20/9. Lamag were 2d. up, but Langkon 6d. lower. Sapong were done at 27/-.

DUBLIN DISTILLERS.

A SUCCESSFUL YEAR.

The meeting of the Dublin Distillers Company, Limited, was held yesterday at the Molesworth Hall, Dublin.

Mr. Michael Governey, Chairman, presided, and the directors present were—Messrs. J. H. Locke, J.P., M. J. Minch, J.P., D. E. Williams, and N. R. Read, managing director. There was a large attendance.

The Chairman said it was his pleasing duty again at that meeting to ask them to adopt a report and a statement of accounts such as no shareholder could object to unless he was very hard to please, indeed. (Hear, hear.) Bearing in mind that the profits, as disclosed, amounted to £68,736 7/9, he thought it highly satisfactory. In the original prospectus of the company the average net profits for three years was then given as £67,483, and the assets, exclusive of premises, plant, and goodwill, were stated to be just over £400,000. Their current accounts touched those amounts very closely without any reference to the question of debentures purchased. He might add that, in addition to the debentures purchased the previous year, as stated at last year's meeting, there was since added £36,000 cost of additional debentures acquired. They should bear in mind the great difficulties the directors had to overcome during the year. They were enormous difficulties—difficulties in the way of restrictions which hit the company fairly hard—yet they were able to weather the storm, and were happy to find themselves in the position of placing a very satisfactory balance sheet before the shareholders. He accordingly moved the adoption of the report and statement of accounts.

Mr. Minch seconded, and said the report and statements were most satisfactory.

Mr. Thompson, who said he had so often to criticise the reports and accounts, complimented the directors on the result of the year's trading. It was apparent that they were keeping their plant, premises, and everything in an efficient and satisfactory state.

The resolution was carried unanimously.

The Chairman then moved that a final dividend on the Pref. Shares at the rate of 26 per cent. for the year ended 30th June, less income tax, and a further payment on those shares at the rate of 7/- per share, less income tax, and a dividend on the Ord. Shares at the rate of 7/- per share, less income tax, be declared and paid out of the profits for the same period.

Mr. Locke seconded, and the resolution was carried unanimously.

The Chairman next moved that the co-option of Messrs. J. H. Locke, J.P.; M. J. Minch, J.P., and D. E. Williams, as directors, be confirmed.

Sir Andrew Horne seconded the resolution, with great pleasure. In doing so he believed he was voicing the general opinions of all the shareholders that three more eligible gentlemen, more conversant with the business, the directors could not have chosen. (Hear, hear.)

Mr. Minch returned thanks for their confirmation of his co-option, and expressed the hope that at the end of another year they would have as satisfactory a report to place before the shareholders as they had at that meeting.

The resolution was carried unanimously.

The Chairman said the next business was the re-election of the retiring directors, and on that point said their secretary had received a letter from each of the retiring directors, Messrs. James O'Neill and Philip O'Reilly, informing him that it was not their intention to go forward for re-election. As those letters arrived after the issue of the report to the shareholders it would be necessary, under the articles of association, that some shareholder should move an objection to the re-election of those directors.

Mr. M. Fitzgerald then moved an objection to the re-election of Messrs. O'Neill and O'Reilly.

On a show of hands, the Chairman declared Mr. Fitzgerald's objection carried.

The Chairman, referring to the next business, namely, the re-election of the auditors, Messrs. Craig, Gardner, and Co., said he was delighted to see present, hale and hearty, Sir Robert Gardner, at whose absence, owing to illness, that time twelve months they had to express regret.

On the motion of Mr. Martin Fitzgerald, seconded by Sir Andrew Horne, Messrs. Craig, Gardner, and Co. were unanimously re-appointed auditors.

A Rome telegram states that with regard to the statement of a newspaper circulated from Vienna by an Austrian wireless station to the effect that the Italian Minister of Foreign Affairs had protested in the name of the Italian Government against the decision of the Entente to form a new Czecho-Slovak State, the following semi-official denial is issued here:—"This news is absolutely false. The Italian Government recognised the Central Czecho-Slovak Committee before any other Allied Government, and on May 24th the Czecho-Slovak legion was presented with its national flag in Rome at a solemn ceremony at which, as is well known, the Foreign Minister was present and the Premier delivered a speech.

CURRAGH MEETING—THIS DAY.

The July Meeting, which opens to-day, should provide excellent racing, and, with several important events down for decision, including the Irish Oaks, which will constitute the chief attraction to-morrow, interest will be well maintained throughout. The principal item this afternoon is the valuable Drogheda Memorial Stakes, for which Diadem is amongst the entries, but she has not been sent across from Newmarket, and Geraldina may give most trouble to

CIMARRON.

Other selections are appended:—

Scurry Plate—Patlander or The Settler.
Pollardstown Plate—Good Health.
Marble Hill Stakes—Juvenile or Horrible.
July Plate—The Kodak Girl; if absent, Christmas Holiday.
Rathbride Plate—Athlone.
Brownstown Plate—Capital.

GOLF.—Portstewart.—The competition for the Carrig-na-Cule Cup resulted as follows:—Third round—Dr. Thomson (20) beat W. M'Divitt (20), 2 up; W. F. Biggar (10) beat W. F. Neill (14), 4 and 2; G. Deehan (8) beat Oliver Chance (20), 2 and 1; M. H. M'Divitt (8) beat J. W. Spence (16), 2 and 1. Semi-final—Thomson beat Biggar, 1 up; Deehan beat M'Divitt, 2 and 1. Final—Deehan beat Thomson, 4 and 3.

Exhibition Match at Portstewart.—An exhibition match was played before a large gallery on Saturday on the links of the Portstewart Club. Mr. Harold Reade and Mr. M. S. Atkinson were opposed by Hugh M'Neill, the Portrush professional, and C. W. Pope, the local professional. The amateurs were allowed a start of four holes. At the turn they were three up. The professionals squared at the seventeenth, but the amateurs won the last hole. During the play a collection was made on behalf of the Red Cross Society, and a substantial sum was realised.

Greystones.—A 9-holes stroke competition, continuous from 16th July to 31st August, 1918, inclusive, in aid of war charities. Open to all players who are members of a recognised golf club and have club handicaps.—(Advt.)

Kingstown.—The Longford Challenge Cup, 18 holes, final 36; match play throughout. Entries close 12 o'clock Thursday, the 25th July. Draw published in "Irish Times" on the 26th July. First round to be played Saturday, 27th.—(Advt.)

BOXING.—Frank Moody defeats Seaman Stevens.—At the Ring, London, yesterday, the 18-year-old Pontypridd welter-weight, Frank Moody, secured a points verdict in 20 rounds over Seaman Stevens, of Portsmouth. Skill and cleverness favoured the Welsh boy. Stevens fought hard in flashes, but was out-reached in the long range exchanges, Moody making pretty use of his straight left in a slowly fought fight.

TROTTING.—At Shelbourne Park yesterday evening, before a good attendance. Details:—£5 Dash Handicap, 6 f.—Mr. Tierney's Terry (155), Bunting, 1; Mr. Hyland's Silver King (270), W. Collie, 2; Mr. P. Murphy's Roy B. (60), Keogh, 3. Six competed. Won by two lengths; five lengths between second and third. Time—1 m. 54 4-5 secs. £25 Open Handicap, 1 m.—Final—Mr. J. Collie's Lord Drogheda (VO), W. Collie, *; Mr. Tierney's Terry (115), Bunting, *; Mr. P. Murphy's Roy B. (owes 55), Keogh, 3. Fifteen competed in two heats. Dead-heat, with Roy B. three lengths off. Time—2 m. 41 secs. They ran off twice, and each time again dead-heated, and eventually divided.

CRICKET.—Monkstown Park School v. Baymount School.—Played at Dollymount on Saturday, and resulted in a win for Monkstown Park by 36 runs. Score:—Monkstown Park, 72; Baymount, 36.

WATER POLO.—Dublin Juniors v. Sandycove Juniors, Blackrock Baths, to-morrow evening, 6.15.

BILLIARDS.—Stevenson v. Falkiner.—Closing scores:—Falkiner, 2,474; Stevenson (in play), 1,355.

MAIZE quiet; mixed American, 95/- to ... landed; African, 92/- to 96/- landed.

LIVERPOOL, Monday.—C.i.f. Parcels of wheat and maize were not offered, but prices were nominally unchanged. WHEAT on the spot was steady, but little business reported at late rates. MAIZE—Spot parcels scarce and nominal. FLOUR—Local milled was in only moderate request at unchanged prices. Imported was released to distributing agents at official rates. Wheat and maize parcels inactive in the absence of sellers.

CATTLE.—LONDON, Monday.—Better supply of fat cattle than last Monday; the greater proportion were Irish, and the quality generally showed a decided improvement, many of the beasts being placed in the first grade and a few in the super grade. Several were sent away to be killed on the dead weight basis. A considerably larger entry of sheep and lambs, nearly all being Irish; a large percentage were lambs, but many were only of middling quality. Pelts averaged about 5/8, while lamb skins realised from 5/- to 7/6 each, or about 1d. and 1½d. per lb. respectively of the carcase weight. Numbers in the market—Cattle, 269; sheep and lambs, 4,054; calves, 4.

HULL, Monday.—Falling off in numbers of beasts, 200 against 280 last week. Lambs, 9/6 per stone, with 6/3 for each skin. No pigs.

EGGS—Supplies scarce and prices firmer, trade being restricted; English new laid, 47/- to 49/-; Irish 48/- to 49/- per 120.

LIVERPOOL, Monday.—BACON—There was little new feature in American hog products here to-day, allocations being made to importers on a rather more liberal scale. Bacon met a fair inquiry, demand again running chiefly on Wiltshires, Cumberlands, and clear bellies, supply of latter being limited, though short backs were still too plentiful. Shoulders continued difficult to move, especially New Yorks. HAMS met a good demand, short-cut American somewhat scarce and wanted. Canadian sides were fairly active, but Irish scarce, and Danish nominal. LARD on the spot was in good request at late rates, but supplies fully equal to requirements of both prime steam and American refined. CHEESE steady, and an allotment of 50 per cent. of applications is announced to-day, while prices are said to be under revision. BUTTER moved steadily into consumption, and a further distribution by the Ministry of Food is now due. EGGS scarce and firm at 42/- to 44/- for Irish ben. with duck nominal.

MAIZE—Goods in demand at full recent values. The output of mills is still being conserved for autumn and winter consumption.

CLYDE CRUSHED SUGAR, Monday.—The market opened without change.

BUTTER. — CORK, Monday.—Firsts, 226/-; fresh butter, 217/- per cwt.

MISCELLANEOUS. — LIVERPOOL COTTON (Second Report), Monday.—American quotations reduced 8 to 9 points. Brazilian reduced 29 points. East Indian—Scinde reduced 9 points; others, 10 points. Egyptian quiet and unchanged.

LIVERPOOL COTTON (Closing), Monday.—American market dull, reduced 8 to 9 points. Brazilian reduced 29 points. East Indian Scinde reduced 9 points, others 10 points. Egyptian quiet and unchanged. Sales, 2,000; imports, 6,190 bales. July, 22.21d.; August, 20.90d.; September, 20.00d.; October, 19.51d.; November, 19.24d.

LONDON METALS MARKET.—TIN firmer; 15 tons standard afloat sold at £375, being officially fixed at £372 to £373 for spot and forward. Settlement price, £373. In the East nothing done over the week-end at £365 c.i.f. LEAD—Soft foreign, £29 10/- to £28 10/- net. SPELTER—G.O.B., £54 to £50 c.i.f. as to position. COPPER—Standard cash and three months, £123 to £122 10/-; electros, £137 to £135 per ton.

BRADFORD WOOL, Monday.—The increasing demands of the Government for fabrics for military purposes is resulting in less machinery being available for civil trade. Spinners and manufacturers are accordingly adopting a policy of caution, and new orders are only taken subject to ability of sellers to deliver. Yarn prices irregular, and more or less nominal. Outlook for civil trade also very uncertain owing to coal shortage and scarcity of labour. Spinners active on Bissacs account.

SERVICES AND ANTHEMS.

Magdalen Chapel.—Intercession for our men at the front, for national repentance, and for victory, this evening from 8.15 to 9 o'clock.

A Cape Town telegram, dated July 18th, states that Delville Day—anniversary of South Africa's Brigade's historic struggle in Delville Wood was celebrated throughout the Union by crowded and impressive Church Services, civic gatherings, and musical commemorations. Lord Buxton, General Botha, and others delivered inspiring messages, eulogising the Delville heroes and appealing to young men to continue to fill the gap in the brigade and maintain reinforcements, thus answering the call of their comrades at the front.
